Today

Mellon Doesn't Worry.
Nor President Coolidge.
The Old Spanish Trail.
Sad, Useful King.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

SECRETARY MELLON, who knows business, finance and money, having a few hundred millions of the last, writes a report to cheer the heart of a pessimist and chill the heart of a bear.

Balancing billions in his paragraphs, as a juggler balances little red balls, the Secretary foresees more and bigger prosperity.

The Secretary is even encouraged about our bootlegging troubles. Only about 5,000,000 gallons were identified in foreign ports as presumably coming to this country, in the year past.

MR. MELLON, a good Secretary of the Treasury, earning every dollar that the people pay him, shows that the gross debt of the United States is reduced to $17,604,290,563.

The Treasury has a net balance of $260,190,331. This past year Mr. Mellon has cut $905,880,703 from the public debt, and added $27,592,210 to the Treasury balance.

That should satisfy anybody.

TO MAKE things perfect, President Coolidge contributes encouraging words of his own.

He foresees a surplus of $60,000,000 for 1930, and while he promises no tax reduction now, he opens the door of hope very wide.

TO THOSE that complain, "I have no big income to tax," prosperity can only give the answer that rich Huntington gave Homer Davenport.

Davenport asked how he could get rich. Huntington said, "Take $10,000 and plant rubber trees." Good advice then. "I haven't got $10,000," said Davenport.

"Then," said Huntington, "don't bother me, until you get it."

TEMPERATURE more than 40 degrees below zero in the Northwest reminds the East that the old Spanish trail is now open from the East coast, through Florida, Texas, the Gulf coast region, and on through Arizona to Southern California, with good roads. Only two ferries between Atlantic and Pacific.

The trip takes you through Northern Florida, past the old Spanish missions of energetic modern San Antonio. And once well started, you can leave your motor out of doors and sleep out of doors.

No more freezing until you come back to the Northeast.

THE infection in the King's lungs, accentuated by higher temperature, indicating a fresh onset of pneumonia, alarms the British.

Lord Birkenhead says truly that King George has done for the British Empire "more than any 10 men." He has served, largely, by abstaining from action, allowing those to run the empire that know how to run it, approving loyalty, patriotism and rewarding them.

Useful are those that know when to be quiet.

DISPATCHES say the band again plays before the palace, when the guard is changed.

He hears the music, coming through his window, but it is sad music, for a King ill, tired and suffering, reminding him of his slight hold upon a life that has been pleasant.

HENRY FORD has built an office airplane for Lindbergh, all metal, three engines, a regular office with metal desk, regular office equipment, typewriter, six upholstered chairs, hydraulic brakes, cabin heated by engine exhaust, fresh air intake, wings 78 feet wide.

Flying is made practical.

LINDBERGH will pilot friends to Harry Guggenheim's place to shoot quail.

Rather a pity that such a big all-metal flying bird should be used to shoot such little birds.

MAIL ROBBERS GET $10,000

RECALL GRAND JURY; MAY RE-INDICT 46; DELAY TRIALS

The November United States grand jury will be recalled to duty January 7, it was announced today by Federal District Attorney John D. Meyer—presumably to pass again on the cases of all or some of the 46 individuals acquitted by court direction in the North Side conspiracy cases last week.

Judge R. M. Gibson at that time held that several conspiracies instead of a single conspiracy had been proved and that therefore the 46, not having been linked together in a single offense, as indicated at that time, should go free.

Meyer announced also that "we have decided to postpone trial of the rum conspiracy cases until February 5." Presumably, too, these are the cases of 93 individuals involved in what are known as the "South Side" and "Strip" conspiracy cases. Trial of the South Side cases had been set for next Monday.

MEYER RETICENT

But Meyer refused to say whether the South Side cases would be taken up February 5. He refused to state positively whether re-indictment of the acquitted North Side defendants would be asked of the grand jury; he refused to explain why he was waiting until January 7 to recall the grand jury, which was in session when the North Side cases were thrown out a week ago. Except for the announcement of the grand jury's calling, he confined himself to the following statement:

"After considering the press of other business in the courts, the approach of the holiday season and its interference with the service of jurors, and the possibility of the trial extending beyond December 21, the last day scheduled for jury trials, we have decided to postpone trial of the rum conspiracy cases until Monday, February 5, 1929. This has been approved by the court."

ACTION URGED

Since Judge Gibson freed the 46 defendants, various religious and reform organizations have been asking for reindictments. Among these organizations are the East End Ministerial Association, the National Reform Association, the Adult Division of the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association and various adherents of the Anti-Saloon League.

It has been said that all or most of the defendants can be reindicted to conform with Judge Gibson's position.

FORNEY WATCHED

It was reported, too, that the reform organizations had their eye on the renewed efforts to get a pardon for Alfred W. Forney, who pleaded no defense to the conspiracy charge, and drew a fine and six months' jail sentence. The pardon, originally recommended by Meyer and then dropped by him, has been opposed unalterably by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington and by the reform organizations.

Forney's attorney, Hiram Hirsh, is in Washington now.

THEFT OF MINE PAYROLL BARED; POSTAL QUIZ ON

A $10,000 mine payroll robbery on the Turtle Creek branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad is being investigated by railroad detectives and postal authorities, it was learned today.

A mail pouch containing the money in denominations from $1 to $20 was stolen from the baggage compartment of a combination baggage and passenger coach while being taken from a Pittsburgh bank to a mine of the Bethlehem Mine Corporation at Slickville, Westmoreland county, last Thursday.

The train left Pennsylvania station at 4 a. m. and the theft is believed to have occurred at Blackburn station while the baggage master was riding the engine to throw switches, in reversing the locomotive.

Whether the door leading from the passenger section into the baggage compartment was broken open or had been left open could not be learned.

KING'S PHYSICIANS PREDICT RECOVERY

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Buckingham Palace circles let it be known at 4 p. m. that the condition of King George had not changed since the earlier bulletin from the physicians.

The morning bulletin read:

"The King passed a fair night. His temperature this morning is lower. His general condition is slowly improving and the infective process which still remains severe is becoming more localized," the bulletin read.

It was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson, of Penn. It was posted shortly before 11 o'clock.

Lord Dawson visited Buckingham Palace this afternoon and had a brief consultation with Hewett. About the time of the doctors' afternoon visit, the Queen and Princess Mary went for a drive. The Queen not only smiled, as customarily in response to the salutations of the crowd at the palace gates, but waved her hand to the throng.

It was understood in authoritative quarters this afternoon that

RECLUSE SHOT DEAD UPON OWN REQUEST

LOGAN, O., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—While an ancient phonograph rasped out the strains of "When the Sun Goes Down," Jacob Konchler, farmer-recluse in the Hocking County Hills, was shot to death at his own request, according to a purported confession made to police here today by Ray Featheroff, 19-year-old neighbor.

Konchler, the purported confession said, asked Featheroff to come in the former's home and bring his gun.

"When I went in the parlor," Featheroff is said to have told police, "Konchler told me he was in debt and tired of living and he wanted to die. He said I could have his farm if I'd shoot him.

"Then he walked over to the phonograph and started up the record, "When the Sun Goes Down," while he was standing there I shot him in the back of the head. I didn't stop to look after I pulled the trigger."

A year ago Featheroff was arrested on complaint of Konchler, who accused him of having stolen a watch and gun case. The youth was released after questioning.

HOLIDAY TRADE OF 40 MILLION SEEN

Distribution by banks and trust companies of Allegheny county, just completed, of Christmas saving accounts approaching $7,500,000 in the aggregate, a substantial increase over past seasons, is widely regarded as a happy augury for the homes of the county and the seasonal trade now under way.

Christmas expenditures in the neighborhood of $40,000,000, a forecast for a prosperous season, is predicted on this firmly-established savings system, according to banking and mercantile experience.

142,000 PAID OFF

Some 142,000 men, women and children, about one-tenth of the inhabitants of the county, shared in the distribution, drawing an average of $52.50 each for spreading Christmas cheer. The total of the distribution of checks for Christmas savings, accumulated week by week during the past year, is placed at $7,350,000. This compilation is reached through inquiries by the Sun-Telegraph of nearly all banks in Allegheny County.

Under estimates in banking and mercantile circles that Christmas savings constitute from one-sixth to one-fifth of total Christmas expenditures, a total of Christmas shopping ranging from $36,750,000 to $44,100,000 is indicated for the existing season.

DIFFUSED THIS YEAR

A feature of the increasingly popular savings system this year is the wider diffusion of the practice throughout the banks of the country. While in a few instances downtown institutions show a decrease in the total of accounts, the totals in urban, suburban and outlying areas show large increases.

The number of institutions which have adopted the practice has constantly increased until few not allied with other institutions have not now established and encouraged this stimulation of thrift. Many find it has become neces-

JURY TO QUIZ WALSH AND AIDES ON MONEY

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh, Inspector Charles Faulkner and six police lieutenants were subpenaed today to appear tomorrow before the special grand jury and explain the size of their bank accounts.

Summonses for the eight were handed to county detectives this afternoon. The police commanders will be questioned about accounts which the grand jury examined last week, according to District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner. According to Gardner some of those accounts were not compatible with police commanders' salaries.

Those summoned besides Walsh and Faulkner are Lieuts. Philip Marmo, D. R. Fitzsimmons, Harry Moore, John J. Lynch, George Hook and James Callaghan.

The summonses were issued after a day in which the jury heard only one witness—P. E. (Happy) Moran, former city detective, who said he had "told them everything." He had previously laid his dismissal from the police department to his "getting too close home" to Supt. Walsh while investigating a lottery ring last spring. Moran added that he still meant to sue Supt. Walsh for false arrest as a result of his arrest for an alleged part in the theft of confessions from the city detective bureau.

'CHANGE SEAT HERE SELLS FOR $14,500

A seat on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange was sold today for $14,500, the highest price ever paid.

"Seats on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange should be much higher than the present price," R. V. Nuttal, who has made most of the purchases for New York brokerage houses, said today.

Mr. Nuttal stated that the reports that the New York Stock Exchange is planning to make a reciprocal arrangement with the Pittsburgh market to lighten the press of the record volume of business are not true. The increased value of memberships is fully warranted by developments to take place on the initiative of members of the local exchange in his opinion.

"The new listings to be made shortly and the increased business to be handled in them will justify the higher prices," he said.

The purchase made at $14,500 was made by a Pittsburgh man whose identity has not been disclosed. The other sales were made to New York buyers.

Yesterday a seat was sold for $13,000. In 1903, when the Pittsburg Exchange went into its new building, $14,000 was paid, a record price which was topped only by today's sale.

'PAY-OFF' OF M'MANUS SOUGHT

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—At request of the grand jury, special investigators traced the underworld activities of the late Arnold Rothstein today while police throughout the nation searched for Hyman "Gillie" Biller, pay-off man of "Smiling George" McManus.

Biller is reported to be one of the three unnamed persons indicted with McManus in the slaying of the master gambler. For months he lived on the fourteenth floor of the Park Central Hotel here and is believed by police to be one of the men who passed in and out of room 349 on the night of November 4, when Rothstein was shot there.

TRUSTED WITH THOUSANDS

McManus, a lag-time bookmaker and the brother of a police lieutenant, entrusted Biller with hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash in executing race track transactions.

McManus pleaded not guilty to the murder charge when arraigned Yesterday. He will be given a further hearing on December 20, but District Attorney Joab Banton has given no indication as to when the gambler will be brought to trial.

60,000 PAPERS SCANNED

Meanwhile special investigators are tracing the "most interesting leads" selected by the grand jury from the 60,000 documents taken from Rothstein's files.

It is believed Rothstein's myriad activities included a connection with the Nicky Arnstein $5,000,000 bond theft in Wall street.

Banton declared some of this huge mass of evidence, thought to be incriminating to those in high places, was stolen from the gambler's files before the records were confiscated by the authorities.

STORES FILLED WITH CLERKS FROM '400'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Coincident with the revelation that Lady Doria Hope, daughter of the Duke of Newcastle, had worked as a salesgirl in a New York department store, comes the news that there are many society girls and debutantes working in similar positions for salaries that wouldn't pay their butlers' rent.

The daughters of wealth and luxury are taking to the department store counters because, as Lady Doria explained, they want to be "doing something," and, of course, a business career, regardless of how humble its beginning, is quite all right as far as the "400 plus" is concerned.

A recent inspection of the employment ledger of one of the better New York stores showed that five social registerites were holding positions as salesgirls.

In many stores, a girl cannot obtain work unless she has a college education and has a diploma to prove her qualifications. The store officials say that the attitude of their patrons makes it incumbent upon them to have saleslaidies of intelligence, education and cultural background.

"In order to sell satisfactorily you must be the equal of the person you are waiting on," one employment manager said in explaining the store's requirements.

Just prior to Lady Doria's entrance into the ranks of working shop girls it was discovered that the daughter of Mrs. Sydney Dean, wife of a multi-millionaire manufacturer, of Buffalo, for some months had been living at the Plaza Hotel with her mother and had been working in a department store's juvenile hat department.

She could see nothing amazing in her work as a salesgirl, explaining that it was merely preliminary training preparatory to embarking upon a career as a buyer.

"Of course, I'm not concerned with the salary," she told reporters who interviewed her.

NO FARM RELIEF THIS SESSION, OUTLOOK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—While the Senate and House were dominated today by the Boulder Dam legislative fight and disposal of the treasury-postoffice appropriation requirements, respectively, the long-lived farm relief discussion was being heard in the corridors.

The House Agricultural Committee got together to outline its program, and when the meeting broke up Chairman Haugen expressed doubt that it would be possible to pass an adequate farm relief measure at this session. The full portent of his words was a matter for speculation, since there has been no unanimity of opinion among those primarily interested in the agricultural situation as to whether an extra session would be necessary to handle it.

The setto between Senator Johnson (Rep.), California, and the two Arizona Democrats—Ashurst and Hayden—was up for continuation on Boulder Dam. Johnson had gotten the Senate to substitute the bill passed by the House for his specific measure, with the understanding that none of the numerous amendments proposed by its opponent would be jeopardized.

An amendment to the Boulder Dam bill, regarded as a concrete attempt to compose the water distribution differences between Arizona and California, was offered by Senator Hayden as senate debate on the measure was resumed.

Meanwhile the reapportionment question was up again before the House Census Committee, now with a better outlook. Chairman Snell, of the Rules Committee, said he thought a new reapportionment bill might be passed this session.

The little ones taught it how to fly, gave us the idea.

THE British Field Marshal Robertson worries about America. We remind him of "warlike Germany in 1914."

We are determined, says he, whatever happens, to go on increasing our Navy. The way the President talked reminds him of "Germany's claims previous to the tragedy of 1914."

RIGHTO, and more power to the President. This country does intend to regulate its own affairs, including its own armaments, and sad to relate, without asking permission of anything or anybody outside the national boundaries.

England once ruled the seas and the world, and proudly sang songs about it. Chacun a son tour. It's our turn now.

UNITED STATES air mail now covers 25,383 miles a day, a little more than once around the earth. Congratulations are due to the Postmaster General and the President.

Before long any mail except air mail, except for short hauls, will seem as queer as old stage coach mails.

"EVEN the Metropolitan Museum of New York was duped by imitation Greek art."

It doesn't prove that the statue was not a good statue.

Michael Angelo made imitation antiques, buried them in the ground to make them look old, sold them to an art loving cardinal in Rome. Those "fakes" would be worth a good deal now.

IF THE Metropolitan Museum would spend money on works of men and women now living, they would have no "bogus" worries.

RECOVERY SEEN FOR KING

Princess Mary now hopes to be able to keep engagements at Northampton on Saturday. She had agreed to participate in the ceremonies connected with the opening of a new hospital there.

NATION IS CHEERED

All England was cheered by the favorable tone of the bulletin. The King's lower temperature, restful night and general improvement caused joy everywhere.

It was the most favorable news contained in an official bulletin since the early stages of his majesty's illness.

CROWD CURBS JOY

The crowd that had gathered outside the gates of Buckingham Palace was restrained from cheering only by the fact that the noise might disturb the King.

The physicians' insistent mention of the severity of the infection was the only tempering note in the bulletin. It curbed extreme optimism somewhat, although much hope was put in the statement that the infection was being localized.

One of the worst fogs of the season persisted all night long and still hung low over the city this morning.

The King's room is equipped with heavy double windows which are capable of muffling the roar of the city's traffic at all hours, but the smoke-choked London fog nevertheless managed to seep through into the room.

That there was continued anxiety over the condition of the King's heart was indicated by a statement made last night by Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary.

HOLDS OUT HOPE

"We should not attempt to hide the fact that the King's illness causes the greatest anxiety," he said while speaking at a public banquet. "Although the continuance of the pleurisy infection is not the best sign, there is still great hope, however, that his majesty will come back to good health."

His statement followed information he had received from the palace that the King's condition was not as good as the doctors had hoped it would be.

A verdict for $12,5000 against Mrs. Ella D. Vaughan, Swissvale, niece and heir of the late Henry Denniston, Swissvale recluse, was returned by a jury in Federal Court in favor of Mrs. Mary Reynolds, of Phoenix, Ariz. Mrs. Reynolds sued her mother-in-law, Mrs. Vaughan, for alienating the affections of Raymond Reynolds, son of Mrs. Vaughan by a former marriage.

Mrs. Reynolds sued, through Attorney Thomas M. Marshall, for $100,000 damages. The jury, after a trial lasting three days, got the case yesterday afternoon. Four hours later it reached a verdict and sealed it to be opened by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

Four sample cases containing gowns valued at $1,800 were stolen from the automobile of Lewis J. He was in his office, 1302 Clark Building, at the time. The thieves did not take seven other cases containing less expensive dresses, he said.

'RAISE' ONLY MYTH, THEY PROTEST

Senior high school teachers, instead of enjoying a raise in salary, will suffer a decrease of approximately $200 a year, according to an unsigned circular being broadcast in protest against the proposed schedule recommended here by the citizens' committee on teachers' salaries.

Under the present salary schedule the average pay of the senior high school teacher is $3,600, whereas, if the proposed plan is taken literally with its 45 percentum limitation on teachers eligible for the so-called superior group, it is pointed out, the average annual salary will be $3,410.

The circular, which is said to have emanated from the Fifth Avenue High School, contains the sentiment of the high school teachers as a whole, leaders in the various schools throughout the city declare. During the past week a number of protest meetings have been held to discuss the citizens' committee proposal and sentiment expressed at these gatherings has given the salary committee of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association something besides conferences to think about.

PREVIOUS CUT CITED

The circular reads in part:

"Under the present plan, if every teacher:

"a Can get a master's degree or its equivalent;

"b Can participate in the activities of a learned society.

"c Can make a positive contribution to the extra-curricular life of the school;

"d Can obtain a rating for the high degree of teaching efficiency;

"Under the proposed plan, if every teacher fills every requirement for the very highest degree of efficiency and if every teacher has a doctor's degree besides, he knows that the average salary obtainable for his group will be $3,410.

"The proposed decrease would, if ratified, be the second cut in senior high school salaries since the adoption of the present schedule in 1921. In 1925, 45 minutes was added to the length of the school day without any additional compensation—in effect a salary reduction of 11 1-9 per cent."

At Monday's conference between the teachers', committee and the Board of Education, leaders of the high school groups were roundly criticized by Marcus Aaron, president of the board, to whom one of the circulars had been sent. Mr. Aaron expressed himself as "incensed" at the tone of the circular, which was headed "Thoughts on the Present Discontent." He then went into a detailed explanation of the citizens' committee proposal as it affected the "superior" teachers and declared that "if a situation should arise" when an actual limit would be reached in the superior levels, "the matter could be adjusted favorably."

Miss Maud Walker, president of the Teachers' Association, and Fred Masters, of Fifth Avenue High School, chairman of the Senior High school salary committee, presided at a meeting of representatives from the various high schools last night at which Mr. Aaron's explanation was discussed.

"The Citizens' Committee," she said, "has put into its recommendations much valuable time. The members of this committee all are leaders in Pittsburgh's business world and have our interest at heart, I am sure, and I do not feel that they would deliberately put anything in the way of our advancement either professionally or educationally."

Miss Walker indicated that no referendum would be taken among the teachers at the present time to determine whether or not the Citizens' Committee proposal met with their entire approval.

MELLON'S NEW YACHT GROOMED FOR CRUISE

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(Special.)—The Vagabondia, brand new and the third successive yacht of that name owned by W. L. Mellon, Pittsburgh banker and nephew of A. W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, is being groomed at its Twenty-third street dock, Brooklyn, for a cruise this winter through southern waters.

Within a month or two, its crew expects, the little vessel will sail with its owner, now in Florida, and his friends. New York society today speculates whether the yacht will be used for the honeymoon of Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., international polo star, and Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., former Margaret Mellon and daughter of W. L. Mellon, who announced the engagement of the two yesterday through his Pittsburgh home.

The Vagabondia came to America across the southern Atlantic route, taking 17 days from the Kiel (Germany) yards in which it was built. Capt. Carney is in command.

The boat has many admirers and is considered one of the most palatial yachts now afloat. It is of the most modern design and build. Fourteen knots an hour is its speed from two 800-horsepower Diesel engines. The yacht is 227 feet long.

This is a model showing how the diplodocus looked, ages ago.

MUSEUM AIDE TAKES POST IN ST. PAUL

Arthur S. Coggeshall, co-discoverer of Pittsburgh's most ancient and most famous resident—the diplodocus in Carnegie Museum—is shaking the city's dust from his feet and leaves today for St. Paul, Minn.

There around the first of the year he will become the director of the St. Paul Institute, an institution similar to Carnegie Institute, although smaller.

Coggeshall, who with Dr. J. L. Wortman found the famous Carnegie diplodocus near Medicine Bow, Wyo., in doing so brought fame to the Pittsburgh institution, then directed by Dr. W. J. Holland. It was the first nearly complete dinosaur of its kind ever found. Its discovery and subsequent mounting here in 1899 attracted world-wide attention.

EIGHT REPLICAS GO ABROAD

Since then, as curator of paleontology, Coggeshall has discovered and mounted more dinosaurs than perhaps any other living man. He mounted eight replicas of the famous original specimen in as many foreign lands, taking them abroad, as gifts of Andrew Carnegie, to England, Germany, France, Austria, Italy, Russia, Spain and Argentina.

As a reward for his scientific reconstructions and labors, he has been honored by a number of foreign governments. His decorations include the Officer de l'Instruction Publique de France, 1908; Francis Joseph Order of Merit with Golden Crown, Austria, 1909; Cavaliere Della Corona d'Italia, 1909; Order of St. Anne, Russia, 1910; Caballero de la Orden civil de Alfonso XII, 1914; Cagliere de la Real Orden de Isabel, Spain, 1914.

In all, he served the Carnegie Museum nearly 30 years, the last six as curator of public education.

FRIEND OF CHILDREN

Several of the more recent innovations in museum activities have grown out of Coggeshall's interest in educational activities. A few years ago, under Andre Avinoff, director of the Carnegie Museum, the paleontologist started the Children's museum, embodying the more important phases of natural history so simplified that the children of Pittsburgh could grasp the fundamentals of nature at an early age. He co-operated with the city schools in this activity.

Besides his work with the dinosaurs and other prehistoric animals, Coggeshall has lectured in practically every cultural center in America. He has traveled extensively and is especially familiar with South America's east coast.

Coggeshall will direct the reorganization of the St. Paul Institute and direct the construction of a new set of museum and art gallery buildings there.

TO BE DIRECTOR

Soon, Mr. Coggeshall will become director of St. Paul Institute, similar to Carnegie Institute.

GIRL BEATS OFF SOHO THUG'S

Attacked by a man as she waited for a car at Forbes and Brady street, Anna Nelson, 20, of 806 Amity street, Homestead, beat off her assailant early today. Aid reached the girl as she freed herself from the grasp of the man. He fled across the bridge.

The attack on Miss Nelson by a white man followed, within 24 hours, an attack by a Negro on a girl resident of Hazelwood. She beat her assailant with a pair of ice skates and he eluded a crowd which chased him.

Structural steel supporting the overhead crossing of the Boulevard of the Allies, furnish biding places for thugs. They pounce out on unescorted women, and requests have been made to the police department for protection.

HOOVER ELATED AS S. A. LAUDS AIR PLANS

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.
International News Service.

ABOARD U. S. S. MARYLAND (Via Arlington, Va., Radio Station), Dec. 6.—President-elect Herbert Hoover, now en route for Chile on his good will tour, was elated today over the cordial reception given by Peruvian officials to his proposal for a mighty air mail service to link up the United States and all Latin America.

It is believed that the President-elect will make further reference to this ambitious project in his future speeches in South American capitals.

Belief exists among members of the Hoover party that this visit will be the greatest impetus to aviation links between North and South America since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh made his famous good will flight to Mexico, Central America and some of the South American republics last winter.

VAST AIR SYSTEM

There are already a number of airlines operating in various parts of South America, but the so-called Hoover plan calls tentatively for one vast system for the distribution of mails to all the South American republics from the United States.

It is believed that such an enterprise would be a boon to United States industrial and commercial interests that are engaged in building up trade in the Latin-American markets. But, in addition to the business benefits, it would bring the peoples of the two continents into closer relationship and "make them more neighborly."

When the Maryland sailed from Callao shortly after midnight, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover carried with them many fine and rare gifts given to them at Lima. Some of the jewels and gold work date back five centuries and are priceless in value from their historic associations.

Santa Claus Newest Star in Hollywood

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—(INS)—Hollywood boulevard was Santa Claus lane today. The change in name was effected at Hollywood's great pre-holiday celebration as Santa Claus arrived, reindeer and all, and drove his sleigh down the famous boulevard, re-christened in his honor until Christmas.

The celebration, to be repeated nightly until after the holiday season, was witnessed by thousands of men, women and children, including many film celebrities.

Drinking at College Stops Social Events

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—All formal social events for the balance of the school year, with the exception of the junior prom, have been canceled at Colorado College by the student administrative body, because of the "outrageous conduct of certain members of the student body" in participating in alleged drinking parties at the recent annual homecoming celebration.

Martial Law Asked In Colombian Strike

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Declaration of martial law in the Magdalena banana region, where violence has accompanied a strike of plantation workers, has been requested of the council of state. It was announced that the situation was very grave and that the government was energetically taking a hand in it.

Air Mail Crossing Canada to Be Tried

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 6.—(INS.)—A trial air mail service from Montreal to Vancouver, a distance of 5,000 miles, starts soon, it was learned today. It is expected that the service will be 24 hours faster than by rail. Many business men in Montreal and Vancouver now are using air mail service via the United States for faster service.

REPLY ON TAXI PARKING SENT TO COUNCIL

Council today will receive from the Better Traffic Committee a reply to objections raised by taxicab companies to a pending ordinance regulating parking and cruising.

The committee sponsored the ordinance in the belief that relief from traffic congestion could be obtained if parking stations were partly eliminated and if off-street call stations were established to stop cruising.

In reference to the possible cancellation of stands on a street that later may become a "no parking" thoroughfare, the committee stated that taxicabs should not be allowed to defeat the relief expected from prohibiting individual car owners from parking at a given location.

The committee counters an objection to a clause prohibiting parking at street car steps by stating that the provision is necessary to prevent hazard to trolley car riders and to facilitate rapid and convenient street car loading and unloading.

Youth Near Huge Fortune Faking Bank Figures

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(INS.)—An ingenious young man was sought by police today following the frustration of his bold attempt to win a huge fortune in the "numbers" game, the Harlem lottery, by posting fake figures for newspapermen at the New York Clearing House.

A few minutes before the regular time for posting the figures, the young man appeared in the uniform of the clearing house and marked on the board the set of figures from which the winning number in the lottery is determined. He had hardly vanished when an official arrived with the correct figures. The lottery pays 600 to 1. By getting his fake figures printed in the newspapers, the youth could have won a huge fortune on a small investment.

Fall River Steamer Crippled in Crash

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(INS.)—Two hundred passengers who boarded the Fall River steamer Providence here last night for a voyage to Fall River were proceeding toward their destination aboard the City of Lowell, another vessel of the line.

The Providence collided with a barge in the East River last night and the side-wheeler's paddle wheel was crippled. The ship was taken to a Brooklyn pier and the passengers transferred to the City of Lowell.

HATPIN WRECKS YACHT CRUISE ROMANCE

HAVANA, Dec. 6.—(INS.)—A hatpin punctured the bubble of a possible romance between C. T. Whitehead, Atlanta, Ga., millionaire, and Frances Porter, former showgirl and newspaper writer, who is living upon Whitehead's private yacht, the Malvern, following their quarrel.

Whitehead told friends today he is "done with Miss Porter." He said he did not care if she is deported or returns to the United States on a liner.

The Cuban immigration officials have a warrant for the deportation of Miss Porter as an undesirable. Another warrant, sworn out by Whitehead, charging Miss Porter with assault, has been served upon her by proxy.

Whitehead had accused Miss Porter of jabbing him with a hatpin and hitting him over the head with a slipper.

Miss Porter remained aboard the Malvern today refusing to come ashore unless accompanied by an attache of the United States consulate. She declined to sign any court citations, remaining behind locked doors in her cabin while court officers were aboard the craft.

ALUMINUM CO. DENIES HIRING THOMPSON

Reports that A. W. Thompson, former president of the Philadelphia Company, would return to this city as an official of the Aluminum Company of America were discredited by executives of that organization here. They stated that they had heard of no such step being under consideration and thought it very unlikely.

Mr. Thompson yesterday was given a six-month leave from his duties as president of the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia. Ill health was given as the reason, but reports have been current in Philadelphia that he will not return to U. G. I.

John E. Zimmerman, president of Day & Zimmerman, engineers, was given full executive powers for the period of Mr. Thompson's absence.

Disagreement on the board of directors about merger plans involving a large group of Eastern utilities is mentioned as one reason for Mr. Thompson's withdrawal from active direction of the affairs of U. G. I. The belief is general that the consolidation can now take place with the strongest opposition removed.

Two Members Named To Workhouse Board

Harry E. McLain and Charles C. Kohne, Jr., were elected to fill vacancies on the board of managers of the Allegheny County Workhouse at a meeting of the County Prison Board yesterday in the City-County building. The two vacancies were created through the death of E. H. Swindell and the resignation of W. J. Zanhiser. Warden John McNeil of the county jail received permission to install corridor lights in a new cell block. Warden McNeil reported that the jail had 490 male and 37 female prisoners at the close of last month.

Nursing Committee Director to Speak

WALSH BILLS HIT AT POWER TRUST SCHEME

By M. L. RAMSEY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Two drastic Federal laws intended to stamp out the power trust propaganda flooding the schools and press of the country, were proposed by Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, in the Senate yesterday.

One bill he introduced would make it unlawful for any person, firm or corporation engaged in interstate commerce to pay a teacher or school official for writing or revising any textbook. The teaching of a "doctrine, dogma or theory with intent to influence opinion in favor of any particular governmental action or public policy," advocated by the offender, also would be prohibited.

This measure was aimed at the propaganda pamphlets maneuvered into the schools of almost every state by the public utility propaganda bureaus, and the subsidizing of textbooks, revealed in the Federal Trade Commission investigation. It provided a maximum penalty of $1,000 fine and six months imprisonment.

WOULD CLOSE MAILS

The second bill would deny second class mailing privileges to newspapers and magazines knowingly printing "any reading matter for pay," or publishing reading matter "furnished in substance" by a display advertiser, without disclosure of these facts to readers. Its effect would be to close the mails to these publications except at prohibitive rates.

In the trade commission investigation, which Walsh made the basis of a scathing attack on power propaganda, it was disclosed that thousands of country newspapers were handed advertising to "grease the rails" for propaganda against the Boulder Dam project and in behalf of higher rates to consumers. A great proportion of the propaganda articles were printed as editorials. Others appeared as news items with their source concealed.

The newspaper measure was referred to the committee on post offices and post roads.

Clash on One-Man Cars to Be Aired

City officials of McKeesport and representatives of the Pittsburgh Railways Company will be present before the Public Service Committee today when the city's complaint against the use of one-man cars on Evans avenue in that city will be aired at a hearing before the commission in the City-County Building. The Evans avenue line was not operated last week after the city officials had refused to permit one-man cars to run on the hill. Tuesday morning the service resumed temporarily after an agreement with the traction board.

Police Head Found Guilty of Assault

Sentence will be imposed tomorrow on Mike Mehalik, acting chief of police of Braddock, convicted yesterday in Criminal Court on two charges of aggravated assault and battery and pointing firearms. He was found guilty before Judge M. D. Patterson, of Blair county, of assaulting Fred Biehl, motorman, and Thomas Antiss, emergency man, of the Braddock car barns, last February 17.

MORE BUSINESS HERE AIM OF C. OF C. SURVEY

The making of a careful survey of various industrial financing plans in other cities has been authorized by the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce as the next step in its program of industrial expansion and diversification for Pittsburgh. The decision to make this survey was reached yesterday following consideration of a report presented to the board by the industrial expansion committee, of which F. J. Chesterman, vice president of the Bell Telephone Company, is chairman.

In urging the report upon the board, Mr. Chesterman stated that measures greatly transcending in scope any ever before attempted in Pittsburgh were necessary if the city and district were to secure the share of American industry that properly belong to them.

"There is not the least shadow of doubt," he continued, "that Pittsburgh industry can be greatly enlarged and diversified with an adequate systematic effort backed by financial support, commensurate with the great end sought. Not only have we here in Pittsburgh missed industries for which we are economically better adapted than any other city in the United States, but there are today opportunities at our very doors which may almost be said to be begging to enter. We can secure them, and thereby bring about a new era of growth and material prosperity for the Pittsburgh district."

F. B. Dunbar Named To Aid Coal Survey

The first meeting of the national committee of the American Mining Congress, of which Dr. L. E. Young, of Pittsburgh, is chairman, will be held in Washington tomorrow in connection with the annual convention of the congress. The committee is to conduct a five-year survey for the extension of coal-producing machinery. The appointment of F. B. Dunbar, of Pittsburgh, to the committee was announced yesterday in Washington.

CURTIS TO SEE SUN'S ECLIPSE IN SUMATRA

Dr. Heber D. Curtis, director of the Allegheny Observatory of the University of Pittsburgh, will be a member of the Swarthmore College expedition that will photograph and observe the total eclipse of the sun next May 9 in Northern Sumatra, Dutch East Indies, it was announced last night.

Dr. John O. Miller, head of the department of mathematics and astronomy and director of the Sproul Observatory, which Swarthmore College maintains in Sumatra, will be chief of the expedition. The party, in addition to Dr. and Mrs. Miller and Dr. Curtis, will include Dr. Ross Marriott, professor of mathematics and astronomy at Swarthmore, and his wife and daughter.

Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore, who made the announcement, said the coming eclipse would be of "more than ordinary importance, the period of duration being five minutes and five seconds, the longest, with one exception since the eclipse of 1901." It will be visible over a long strip extending across Sumatra through the Indian Ocean to Siam and the Philippine Islands.

"This territory differing so widely in longitude," said Mr. Aydelotte, "causes the eclipse to occur at different times along its path. This circumstance enables observers to make particular types of observation which otherwise would not be possible. Such observations, for example, make it possible to note any changes in the sun's corona, if such changes occur, during the eclipse.

"For this reason, observations by 9 expeditions, stationed at various points along the path of the eclipse, will be made by the foremost international astronomers."

LABOR URGED TO BUY SEALS

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement received today by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, urges all wage-earners to support the Christmas seal sale.

"The anti-tuberculosis movement is one of constructive purpose and method," he said. "Dissemination of health information is the sure way to check the white plague and this may be promoted by buying Christmas seals. Every one can contribute in accord with his ability and I hope that wage-earners will do their part."

Jack Donahue, of the cast of "Rosalie," will be one of the all-star cast going on the air tomorrow night over station KDKA in the interests of the Christmas seal sale now being conducted by the Tuberculosis League. William Hodge, of "Straight Thru the Door," has accepted a place on the program as have Mary Nash and Ferdinand Gottschalk, both playing here in "The Command to Love."

In addition to these and players from the Harris and Sheridan Square, an entertaining musical program has been arranged. Dr. J. Howard Marcy, medical director of the league, will give a short talk on what the Christmas seal has accomplished. The program will begin at 11 p. m.

MAN CONFESSES KILLING BOY; BODY FOUND

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(INS)—The body of 7-year-old Joseph Storelli, kidnaped from New York's East Side on November 17, was found today in a swamp near Secaucus, N. J., following the confession in Detroit of Peter Kudzinowski that he had murdered a child near Secaucus.

The man captured in Detroit had confessed that he had abducted the child, slit his throat and hid the body in the meadows.

A few days following the lad's disappearance police abandoned the search for the kidnaper when the mother, Louisa, expressed the possibility that her estranged husband had taken the child to Italy with him.

CONFESSES

DETROIT, Dec. 6.—(INS)—Peter Kudzinowski, 26, alias Roy Lambert, alias Roy Rogers, sat in police headquarters today and boastfully told how he kidnaped 7-year-old Joseph Storelli in New York and murdered him. He also confessed, police say, to the murder of Harry Quinn, in Scranton, Pa., in 1924.

Kudzinowski was arrested a few days ago as a "Golden Rule Drunk," to be released when he had sobered up. A mandlin boast, overheard by detectives, led to his confession.

"If they knew what I'd done, they would never let me out of here," Kudzinowski was heard to remark to another prisoner.

He was taken before Inspector Fred Fahm, of the homicide squad, and after hours of questioning told of the murders "to clear his conscience."

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 6.—(INS)—That Peter Kudzinowski might have been telling the truth when he told Detroit police yesterday that he murdered Harry Quinn here in March, 1924, was made known today by the authorities of Minooka, in Lackawanna township, near here.

Minooka authorities said that Harry Quinn, 20, disappeared in 1924 and no trace of him has ever been found by relatives. It was never reported, though, that he had been murdered until Kudzinowski made such a statement in Detroit yesterday.

Justice Holmes Absolved in Auto Parking

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—It remained for Judge John P. McMahon in police court yesterday to decide that a chauffeur could park a car in front of his employer's home long enough for the owner to get into it, and that decision absolved Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, and his chauffeur, of an "improper parking" charge.

A passerby, noticing the waiting car in a restricted zone, remarked to a policeman that "justice should apply equally to everyone." The officer forthwith gave the chauffeur a ticket. The justice called it an outrage, and Judge McMahon seconded him.

FOUR RELEASED IN DROWNING

Coroner W. J. McGregor late yesterday ordered the release of four men taken into custody yesterday morning when Frank Elrick, 21, of Hazelwood avenue, a companion, was drowned after he had slipped from the bank of the Monongahela River at No. 1 lock, Second avenue, where a wrestling match was being held. Police say the five men had been drinking.

Those released were John Perles, 21, of Sunnyside street; James Broderick, 22, of Second avenue; James Whalen, 21, of Johnston avenue, and James Schriver, 24, of Chatsworth street.

Police found Whalen stripped and diving for Elrick and the others making all efforts possible to help. The body was found yesterday afternoon near the Smithfield Street Bridge.

Venice Gondoliers Now Singing Jazz

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Rosabelle De Long, opera singer, back from Venice today, says the gondoliers now are singing "Old Man River" and "On Moonlight Bay," and as a result the tourist feels as if he is bound for Coney Island instead of the Piazza San Marco.

Six Seconds For Safety

"There may be painless dentists, but there are few painless accidents," says the Pittsburgh Motor Club in its safety campaign to keep the sorrow of death and injury from Pittsburgh homes this Christmas, through the medium of safety "wise cracks," which may be easily remembered during that important six seconds necessary to prevent an accident. Remember, 25,775 people were killed in this country last year, in auto accidents.

Byrd's Expedition At Ice Pack Soon

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Word that Commander Byrd's Antarctic exploration expedition had "left civilization at last" was received by Secretary Wilbur over Naval radio yesterday from the explorer.

"Expect to reach ice pack and Ross Sea about December 9," the cryptic message said. "Impossible to estimate date of arrival at the Ross ice barrier."

The Navy has arranged to maintain constant radio communication with the Byrd expedition after it establishes a base in the Bay of Whales on Ross Sea, the only safe harbor at the edge of the Antarctic continent.

Alarm Clocks Ring as Band Fails to 'Click'

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 6.—A band was on the stage during a theatrical performance. Off went an alarm clock in the audience, then another, then a third, and so on till six were busy. The management concluded that the Yale boys disliked the band.

Two Frat Initiates In Mummy Stunt Badly Scalded

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—One University of Michigan student was taken to the university hospital yesterday with burns received in the fall initiation of Sphinx, junior honorary society, and two others were treated for less serious burns.

Harry M. Wallace, of Highland Park, Mich., was taken to the hospital, where attendants refused to comment upon his condition. Fred Bauchard, Erie, Pa., and R. Bradford Fogerty, Oak Park, Ill., were treated at their fraternity houses.

Hot water was poured on the Sphinx neophytes, strapped to planks, as part of the ceremony of being "mummified."

Hungarian Hangman Dies; Killer of 130

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Kari Gold, Hungary's busiest hangman, died today from apoplexy. He had hanged 130 men since 1888.

Babe-in-Arms Dies From Auto Fumes

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—The 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Henry, of Adkin, Ark., was asphyxiated by what physicians said was ethelyn monoxide poison while riding in his mother's lap in an automobile near here yesterday.

Two other children were made ill and other occupants, including the mother, were slightly affected by the fumes which seeped up into the partly inclosed car from the exhaust.

Missing Girl Found Asleep in Station

Josephine Zielinski, 15, a maid who disappeared from the home of Mrs. Fred Keenan at 752 Rossmore avenue, Brookline, last Friday, was found asleep in the lobby of the Jefferson (O.) Courthouse two days later, the Bureau of Missing Persons was notified today.

Josephine left the Keenan home for her own home at 556 Dunster street, complaining that she was ill, but went to Jefferson, the authorities said, and met a friend there.

Return Addresss On Christmas Cards Urged

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—If Postmaster General New has his way, some persons throughout the country may receive by mail Christmas greeting cards from themselves just when that festive holiday is sinking into memory.

He had advised the mailing public to disregard tradition and place return addresses on all Christmas mail, including cards. That this suggestion bears merit is indicated by the postoffice estimate that well-meant Christmas greetings which are never delivered total $325,000 in postage, stationery and cards annually. The dead letter office gets them.

SENATE FIGHTS WEST PLACE IN CABINET

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—President Coolidge gave Congress another fighting issue today and it was seized upon immediately with prospects of a battle over the nomination of Roy O. West, of Illinois, as Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. West is serving, along with William F. Whiting, Secretary of Commerce, by reason of a recess appointment. As soon as his name was presented, Chairman Nye, of the public lands committee, served notice that he would ask hearings on the nomination, especially on whether Mr. West was connected with the Samuel Insull public utility interests in Chicago.

An indication that the fight might develop came as soon as the Senate learned that the West nomination was before it.

"Certain charges have been made," Nye said. "I have no doubt that Mr. West can state his position very satisfactorily in regard to these charges of his connection with the power interests, but I think in view of the charges he should be given an opportunity to speak."

Senator Nye said he would ask to have the nomination of West referred to his committee and that he hoped to take it up in committee on Saturday.

Posse Catches Bank Bandits; One Shot

KELLYVILLE, Okla., Dec. 6.—(A.P.)—A posse of citizens routed two holdup men today after a gun fight at the Bank of Kellyville. Dennis Williams, one of the bandits, was shot in the back and a member of the posse received a slight flesh wound. Williams' companion was identified as John Eldridge, 18 years old. Both live at Wynt, a community nine miles south of here. The two robbers entered the bank before the opening hour and when Horace Harvey, the cashier, arrived locked him in the vault after taking between $800 and $1,000.

Holmes Describes Wonders of Siam

Siam, the land of Chang, was toured by an unrivaled audience last night in Carnegie Music Hall under the guidance of Burton Holmes. From the mad capital of Bangkok, where the wonders of the Siamese architecture whose walls of temples are a glorification of painted crockery in contrast with the more recent European architecture, to villages built on stilts and the jungle lands of the elephants, were the many features of a most interesting travel talk. Next Wednesday night Mr. Holmes will present a new version of the glories of Paris.

New German Remedy Sold Under A Written Guarantee Ends Pain Of Neuritis

A remarkable new discovery of German chemistry called Rheunesia for the relief of neuritis is astonishing the medical world. This marvelous prescription seems to end the pains of neuritis just as effectively as these other German products—Novocain for painless dentistry and Aspirin for headache hurts.

The terrible pain of neuritis is almost always due to an infection which can generally be traced to toxic poisons, such as a blind gut pocket in a tooth, diseased tonsils or the poisons set free from constipation. These poisons are carried in the blood, setting up infections which result in agonizing pains in the nerve ailments. Rheunesia helps the blood throw off these violent poisons and neutralizes the toxic poisons in much the same way as Milk of Magnesia neutralizes an acid stomach, thus giving instant relief from pain.

So remarkable have been the results from the use of Rheunesia that May's are authorized to distribute it to neuritis sufferers in Pittsburgh with a positive written guarantee to return the full purchase price on the first package if it does not bring wonderful relief. All sufferers from neuritis or kindred ailments should promptly take advantage of this guarantee. Get Rheunesia today at May's and all good drug stores. Regular $2.50 package at the special introductory price of $1.95.

sary as a service to depositors, bankers state. Small totals in some large banks are due to the fact that the practice has been adopted only within the past year.

An indication of the accumulation of Christmas savings is shown by Wilkinsburg and a group of industrial communities. Swissvale, Rankin, Braddock and East Pittsburg are the banks of which substantial checks aggregating $90,000 are issued.

The Allegheny County total represents about 3½ per cent of the $2,500,000 estimated to have been the amount of Christmas saving distributed throughout the United States.

The leaders in downtown Pittsburgh, the Union Savings Bank, with a distributed sum of $750,000 to depositors, shows a drop from 1927 when $1,000,000 was distributed.

OTHER TOTALS

Other downtown institutions show these totals paid, or found numbers of depositors: Diamond National Bank, $4,300—3,000; Farmers Deposit National Bank, $250,000—5,500; First National Bank, $275,000—6,000; Pittsburgh Trust Company, $375,000—5,000; Colonial Trust Company, $150,000—2,500; Union Title and Trust Company, $250,000—2,500; Commonwealth Trust Company, $250,000—2,500; American Exchange National Bank, $150,000—2,500; Bank of Pittsburgh, N. Spark of Life

Where does it come from and where does it go? Everything begins in Electro chemistry and everything ends the same way. Youth is the great jewel of life. With a clean blood stream it is glorious, and every one is entitled to this heritage for a Happy Old Age. Health makes us more kind and considerate, and that is about all that is needed to make this world a better place to live in. If the Spark is not in Protein substance our body would die.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, former New York Health Commissioner, now U. S. Senator, said: "There is one food without which life would soon end —Protein." This sun-kissed atom that gives and sustains life finds solace in your blood stream.

The principal object of this laboratory is to restore health to suffering men and women and thereby enable them to earn a livelihood.

Ruth Urban plays a leading role in "My Maryland," operetta returning to the Alvin next week for farewell appearance.

George Jessel will be seen next week in the Pitt in "The War Song," his latest comedy.

CARDINI LEARNED HIS MAGIC IN THE WAR HOSPITAL AFTER SHELL SHOCK

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

MERLIN the enchanter was a Welshman, and so is Cardini, doing marvelous tricks with cards and billiard balls at the Davis Theater this week. He was born at Swansea, Wales, where his father was a watchmaker, and his real name is Richard V. Pitchford. The name Cardini was conferred on him in the military hospital, where he was treated for shell-shock. Lying helpless 24 hours every day, he used to amuse himself practicing sleight-of-hand, until the nurses and internes began to have doubts of his sanity. Finally a doctor was sent to examine him.

"They say you're nutty on cards," said the doctor. "They say you take no interest in anything else."

"That's true," admitted the young man, who is only 32 years old now; "I'm going to be a magician."

"Better learn something useful," said the doctor, laughing. "That won't get you very far."

But it got Cardini as far as Australia, and then by way of Seattle to the United States.

He has had lots of trouble with his curious trade. When he was discharged from the British army, the easiest job was getting a commission to find work for vets. The trip to Australia was suggested, but his case. Travelers and clerks gave him the poorest advice. Showmen took up his case. They liked his tricks and offered him the powerful assistance of a search for romance and happiness by a lonesome boy and girl, Barbara Kent is the girl and Glenn Tryon, the boy, in the picture.

In the Grand next week the feature will be "The Man Who Laughs," a film from Victor Hugo's novel, "By Order of the King," with Conrad Veidt and Mary Philbin in the leading roles.

"Nite Club Girls," a new burlesque, comes to the Academy next week with Billy Tanner and Evelyn Whitney in the principal roles.

The Harris, for the last three days of the week, will continue its sound pictures with "Gang War," featuring Olive Borden and Jack Pickford. Photophone is the talking device in the Harris.

The vaudeville in the Sheridan Square the last half of this week will be topped by a song and dance act, "On the Riviera." A screen feature, "Gang War," with Olive Borden and Jack Pickford, will be shown.

Man Missing 2 Days Found Dead in Room

Carbon monoxide caused the death of John Bistel, 60, a roomer at 609 Build way, North Side, according to a report made to the coroner last night. He had not been seen for two days and when fellow roomers forced the door last night he was found dead.

FUTURE BILLS CONTAIN VARIETY

"My Maryland," American musical romance, will be the attraction in the Shubert-Alvin next week only, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. "My Maryland" has book and lyrics by Dorothy Donnelly and music by Sigmund Romberg, composer of "Blossom Time" and "The Student Prince."

Seats are on sale in the Pitt for George Jessel's engagement in "The War Song," a story of a Jewish boy's love and devotion to home and country. Matinees will be given Thursday and Saturday, and the engagement is limited to one week.

The attraction in the Nixon for the week opening Monday, December 17, will be Jerold Delasco's "The Bachelor Father," which comes to Pittsburgh with the original New York cast intact. Seats go on sale Monday, December 10.

"The Woman Disputed," Norma Talmadge's latest starring picture, coming to Loew's Penn next week, has its locale on the Austrian-Russian border during the early days of the World War. Miss Talmadge plays a street girl loved by two friends, officers in enemy armies.

"On Trial," Warner all-talking Vitaphone special, will be shown in the Stanley next week, with Pauline Frederick in the role played on the stage by Elsie Ferguson.

"Lonesome," next week's attraction in Loew's Aldine, is the story

"Exotic settings of breath-taking beauty. Destined to remain at the Astor Theater for many a week. Produced and Photographed on the natural locations and with the ancient native tribes of the Marquesas Islands. Subtly and with commendable artistry, W. S. Van Dyke, the director, wove his story. BUGS BAER Says

WITH slightly diluted horror we learn that America is the junkyard for queer European art treasures.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The latest palooka is an ancient painting that was bought for one million dollars.

It was supposed to have been crocheted by Mike Angelo.

Last week we discovered that, compared with this painting, Jackie Coogan is an old master.

The painting proved to be merely a bathroom window with too much putty on it.

If you have one of the following art treasures in your home then you have been two-timed for a long walk:

Napoleon crossing the Delaware.

Ajax selling lightning rods.

The statue of Cleopatra with bow legs.

The famous discus thrower has been finally diagnosed as a cafeteria bound juggling his platter.

Cellini's group statute of his wives is merely a pierde of the Daughters of the Greek Revolution.

An early Persian-painted tapestry proves to be egg stains on a napkin.

The statue of Venus without arms is O. K. But she carried the bobbing craze too far.

Any time a statue is busted in Europe they sell it over for new.

It is impossible to buy an undamaged painting or an entire chunk of sculpture over there.

We saw everything in the art galleries. The result makes us suspect that European critics go around with guns and hammers.

Any time you drop a dish don't throw the pieces away. You can sell them to a municipal art gallery for millions.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A SIMPLE PLEASING FROCK FOR MOTHER'S GIRL.

Checked suiting is here combined with wool crepe. The dress could also be developed in velveteen or wool georgette with pipings in a contrasting color. Wash materials, gingham, linen and cotton prints are likewise suggested. Long waist portions shaped to form tabs, are joined to skirt portions in which plaits form broad panels. A neat collar and comfortable sleeve complete this becoming model. The sleeve may be made in wrist length or in short length.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. To make the dress as illustrated in the large view for a 6-year size will require 1¼ yard of plain material and 1½ yard of the checked material 36 inches wide. If made entirely of one material 2⅝ yards will be required. If made with short sleeves 2⅜ yards is required. To finish with bias binding requires 3 yards

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HER YEN TO TRAVEL

By EMILY BURTON.

"IF I can earn the money for the trip, may I go?" Sherry Knowles stood pleading with her mother.

"Yes, Sherry. If you earn the money," replied the mother. "But how can a girl two miles from town make any money? If you went to the city to work it would take all you made to pay your expenses there. You might as well give up the idea of this trip to California. It is foolish to think about it."

But Sherry kept on thinking about it. All of her life she had been buried in a village. She wanted to get away from its monotony. She wanted to travel. She wanted to see some of the places that other people had seen.

"If I could have just one trip, I could die happy," she mused.

While she was musing there came a knocking at the door.

Sherry went to the door and was standing outside when she opened the door.

"We are looking for a boarding house," said the older man.

Sherry called her mother. The strangers introduced themselves as Bud Bennett and Blake Foster, saying they had come to start work on a new factory that was being constructed near the Knowles home. Finally it was agreed that Mrs. Knowles would furnish board for Mr. Bennett, the superintendent, and Mr. Foster.

A big crew came in a few days and Sherry delighted in the noise and bustle that the construction work caused.

"I wish there was something I could do," she said one evening at the supper table. "I'm obliged to make some money."

"You could open a lunch stand for the workmen," said Bennett.

But that was no use for Sherry. It was an impossible task. She snatched at the suggestion. She persuaded the superintendent to build a wooden shack for the stand and persuaded her mother to help her.

Every morning she served fresh home-made pies, cakes and sandwiches to the crew. A cute, homey-looking curtain put up at the finishing touches to "Sherry's Store."

She made a success from the start. The quality of her food gained her own quiet clientele in the short time that she had been permitted to trade. Bennett and Foster were sure that she had a good permit and no disconcerting word of any kind.

After many weeks of doing work the novelty wore off and the chores grew irksome, but Sherry was no quitter. Besides there was Blake Foster. He paid little attention to her, but he came in every day for his lunch. Sherry always saved scraps of food for his dog and that elicited a friendly smile from Foster.

"Rags" did not share his master's indifference to this girl that fed him. The dog was frankly devoted to Sherry and hung around the little stand most of the day.

One day Bennett was called away on business and left Blake in charge of the building. Dan Wade, an old carpenter, was set out to show the fellow workmen that he knew more than the young foreman.

Wade's bossing got gradually changed to insult and finally developed into open hostility. And so Blake Foster found himself in. That's when the real trouble started.

Workmen became surly. Tools disappeared. Cement refused to harden. Scaffolding gave way and a number of minor accidents delayed the work. Dan Wade was stirring up trouble.

Sherry heard lots of conversation around the lunch counter. She saw Wade skulking around the plant. She noted Blake Foster's harassed look, but she wisely kept silent.

Late one Saturday afternoon, she drove into town. On her way back she stopped at her "stand" to leave some wooden utensils. She knew that the workmen would not be there at that time, but she expected to find the watchman. She did. But he was lying on the ground, apparently dead drunk. She stepped out and started across the grass to the wooden shack that housed her business. Just before she reached the door she saw a man skulking by a corner of the building. Instantly Sherry's heart leaped into her throat. She crouched close and saw that the man was Dan Wade. She took a step forward and watched his stealthy movements. He was setting a fire under the rear part of the building.

Sherry shouted.

Wade started, grabbed a stand at the girl. He started for her with a threatening attitude. She ran to the car and jumped in. But before she could turn Wade was at the door.

Wade was about to pull Sherry out of the car when a dog leaped at him. It was "Rags." The dog had followed Sherry to town. He had come to the rescue of his master.

Sherry drove through the woods to the station. She had to wait for the train. She watched for Blake Foster, but he did not appear.

"Rags" jumped through a crack between logs and saw the dog outside. Mavis Rags would carry a message back home.

She found a scrap of newspaper, wrote a note with a bit of charcoal, tied it up in her handkerchief and climbed up to the tiny window near the top of the wall.

"Here, Rags! Here!" she called encouragingly. "Take this home." She pitched the small bundle out the window and the dog caught it in his mouth.

"Go home, Rags. Go home," she ordered.

Off ran the dog, scurrying through the undergrowth.

Blake Foster was just leaving the house when Rags arrived. After much barking and wagging and jumping the dog finally attracted his master's attention.

Foster stooped and picked up the tiny wad bundle. A girl's handkerchief! Could the farm workers. He opened it and read the message.

"Come to the Haunted Hut in the Marshland. Sherry."

Five minutes later, Foster, with six armed men, were dashing through the woods toward the Marshland. It was during that wild ride that Blake realized how much the girl meant to him.

It was black dark when the men reached the hut.

"Here, Sherry," called Foster, and even in that excited moment Sherry noted the tenderness in his voice. "Then the stout oak door gave way and the men crowded into the cabin.

"My poor girl," a repentant Foster was to be gathered to his arms.

Just after Christmas Sherry received letters from Bennett and Foster. But Sherry did not go with that party. She had already gone in another direction—on her wedding trip.

A most unusual color photography study—a group of native deer in a fall setting, showing minutest detail of coloring from the beautiful animals to the red maples which make the background. The group is one recently created at Carnegie Museum. The deer were obtained in Kane County.

As usual, the Section is alive with scenes of local activities. Street and river scenes — unusual views of Western Pennsylvania—local people—in short, an interesting feature for a Sunday Newspaper.

OUR SET UP IN NEW P. O. HERE

Many Pittsburghers today were surprised to learn that Congress last year had appropriated only a part of the necessary $6,000,000 to build the new federal building at Seventh avenue and Grant street. That part amounted to $300,000.

An additional $1,000,000, the amount necessary to carry on the work that is expected to be done within the next year, is carried in the Treasury Department public buildings bill reported in the lower House of Congress yesterday.

This plan of appropriating only a part of the necessary moneys at a time, the Treasury Department explained, was in keeping with a new policy of allocating only sufficient funds to keep the building contractors busy.

M'Donald Man's Will Shows $39,000 Estate

A copy of the will of William J. Valley, of McDonald, Washington County, filed for probate here today, discloses an estate of $39,000, of which $35,000 consists of realty in Pittsburgh and Bradford, Pa. The bulk goes to six brothers and sisters in different parts of the country. A brother, George J. Valley, of McDonald, is named executor.

Father Asks $10,000 For Girl's Injuries

George L. Sarver, acting for his daughter, Margaret, struck by a truck of the Hazel Glen Milk Company at Second avenue and Malanchia street, November 12, has brought suit against the company for $10,000 damages. It is alleged the truck was operated carelessly. The girl was hurt about the head, face and back.

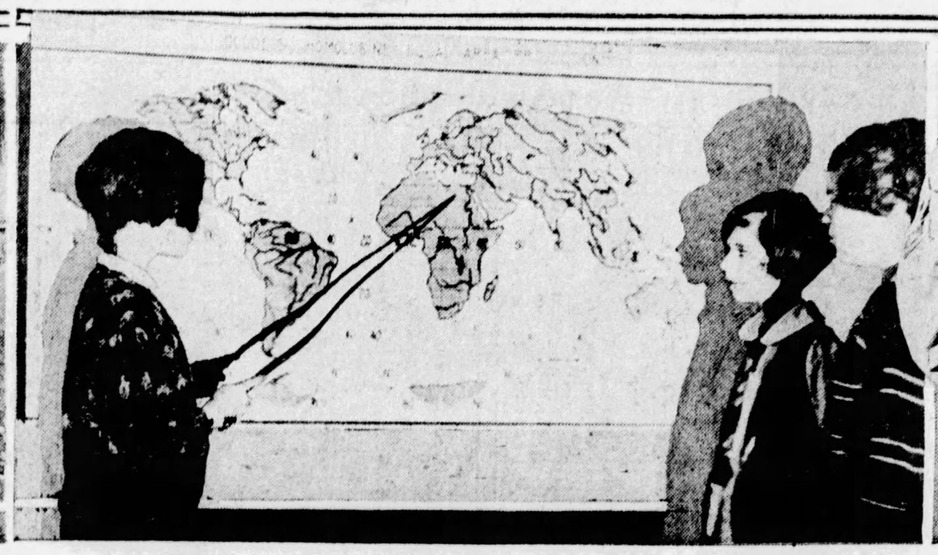
School Teachers Use Motion Picture Projector in Daily Classwork to Carry Visual Lessons to Pupils

MISS MARJORIE SNODGRASS

Miss Marjorie Snodgrass, teacher and last year Carnegie Tech co-ed beauty winner, operates this motion picture projector as it is done in Bellevue schools.



VISUAL LESSONS

Bellevue educators find visual lessons of the utmost instructive value.

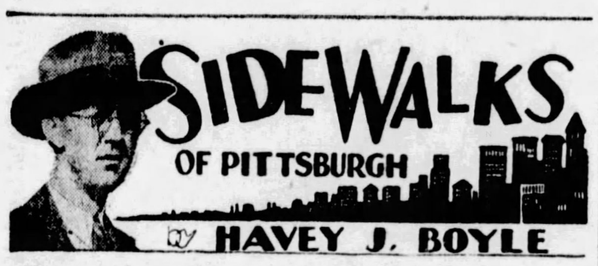
MISS MARION ELDER

Miss Marion Elder, Latin teacher in Bellevue High School, examines this roll of film. There is scarcely a limit, she says, to what can be taught by motion pictures.

HOW "MOVIE" MACHINE PROJECTS MAP TO WALL

Here is one manner in which the motion picture projector is used. The map you see is projected to this wall screen from the machine. The young pupils learning where this and that are located are Mary Elizabeth McLaughlin, Virginia McCann and Olive Erench.



JOHN HERNON, who has been mixing with the elephant trainers at the current circus in Motor Square Garden, discovered how the elephants are trained for circus work.

An untamed elephant is tricked into obedience. He is first blindfolded and then chained to the floor. About 50 men then gather around the elephant and begin hitting him with clubs.

After the beating is over all but one of the men with clubs disappear. The blindfolded elephant then is allowed to get to his feet and the lone man present takes the bandage off the elephant's eyes. The elephant blinks and looks at the solitary man in front of him. The elephant concludes that if one man can administer the sort of beating he was subjected to man must be superior in strength to the elephant. After that the elephant does as he is commanded.

Ralph Edgar writes to say we overlooked an important happening at last Sunday night's concert. This came, advises Mr. Edgar, at the beginning of the third movement of the Mendelssohn concerto, which was, of course, the Allegretto Non Troppo. The fiddles were going fine when at a certain second Mr. Breeskin's baton came down and crashed his music stand with such force that the baton was split in two. The players looked up startled, and after a moment's pause, Mr. Breeskin started them off again.

We didn't notice this, but even if it had come to our notice, we likely would have thought this was a part of the program.

ONE of the newest things in town is the tear-bomb fountain pen. Milt Jaffe had one on display the other night. It looks like a fountain pen. The clasp that holds the pen in the pocket is the trigger. A little pressure on that clasp shoots the tear-gas. It renders the target hors de combat for a half hour or so. After that there is no ill effect.

The instrument will have a big appeal in bridge games where the participants are bothered by kibitzers.

Some of the students in the class of journalism at Pitt heard local reporters and sport writers tell of their experiences the other night in the fraternity house of —— (the space indicates the Greek letters as we happen to be out of them at the present time although the factory has promised early delivery of a new set).

Excepting one, all the talks were entertaining, but more interesting would have been talks by the students of what they expect to do in newspaper work and what their outlook is concerning the trade of letters.

So there will be no misunderstanding we had better say that the only uninteresting talk was the one made by yours truly. We spent much time on the address, but we fear it was too long. it was a survey of the future of journalism in Persia and its effect on the new public school system recently inaugurated there.

BELLEVUE HIGH USING MOVIES AS STUDY AID

Movies have taken their place with the textbook in Bellevue High School.

A combination stereopticon and moving picture machine, purchased by the students out of surplus proceeds of entertainments over a period of three years, was dedicated at chapel excercises yesterday. It will be used in classroom work and in entertainment programs.

"The picture machine will be useful in supplementing oral instruction and textbook, especially in American history and social subjects," said J. Nelson Mowls, principal. "The machine also will be used in singing. We use no singing books in Bellevue High. Heretofore the words of class and school songs have been projected by stereopticon."

The machine was used for the first time yesterday by J. E. Sawders, lyceum lecturer, in giving an address, "With the Marines in Nicaragua." John Munn, a member of the junior class, has been chosen as operator.

Barbers Needed In Jail, Two Sentenced

Three young men, two of them barbers, pleaded guilty in Criminal Court today to dynamiting an Elizabeth barber shop. Joe Tortorice, 25, a barber; William Rubino, 28, a barber, and James Maley, 28, all of Elizabeth, said they blew up the shop of F. L. Kalslin on June 27 because they were drunk.

Visiting Judge Myles I. Potter sentenced the two barbers and their confederate to the Western Penitentiary for one and a half to three years. And then he changed the sentences to be served in the county jail.

Why? Because, it was explained, Warden McNeil, of the county jail, needs barbers to shave the beards of his many guests!

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.

My November message, on the "state of the nation":

The nation never looked like it was facing a worse winter. Birds, geese, Democrats and all perishable animals are already huddled up in three or four states down South. We are at peace with the world, because the world is waiting to get another gun and get it loaded.

Wall Street is in good shape, but Eighth avenue never was as bad off. The farmers are going into the winter with pretty good radios, but not much feed for their stock.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

P. S. I don't want you to think this message is pessimistic. Mr. Coolidge is an optimist and will be till March fourth.

Madge Is Struck by Auto As She Flees From Carroll's Studio

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Madge Sayer, young and beautiful, lives in a dingy New York apartment with her father, an unsuccessful inventor, who always plans for riches that never come. Madge seeks thrills and gaiety, and longs for the intoxication of joyous living. At a party given by Frances Storrs, a friend, she meets Carroll Dudley, handsome artist, aviator and "man about town." Dudley lays siege to Madge, who is warned by Frances Storrs. She dines in his luxurious studio apartment. He takes her on a midnight airplane ride and following several days' rushing asks her to pose for him. Madge agrees on certain conditions. These he accepts, but after posing Dudley takes Madge in his arms and professes his love. She assures him of her own love and speaks of marriage which Dudley avoids. Over an accidentally "broken-in" wire Madge hears him called "a Prince of Cads." He allays her suspicions, but when he is out a woman appears in the studio. "I am Mrs. Carroll Dudley," she announces to Madge. Carroll explains that love made him hide his marriage but now he is to be free. Madge accepts his explanations. Unexpectedly she returns from a visit to her father now staying in the country and finds that Carroll has exhibited her painting to a party of his friends.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

SO Carroll had shown that secret canvas—their canvas! Shown it to his drunken friends at a studio party!

"Oh, what a cad! A prince among cads!" Madge exclaimed furiously, unconsciously echoing the epithet applied to Carroll by that woman she had heard over the wire.

"But, my dear young lady," Stewart began helplessly, as he saw how he had put his foot in it, "if I have been indiscreet—"

Madge would not hear him, and as she continued her tirade, Mr. Stewart, pleading on engagement, fled from her wrath and from the apartment.

Left alone in the studio, Madge longed for Carroll to arive quickly. She wanted him for vengeance then with greater poignancy than ever she wanted him when love made her hunger for the violent thrills he aroused.

"Oh, let him come," she raged. "Let him come soon."

And suddenly he was there, framed in the doorway. He had met Stewart as he came into the building, and by his expression Madge knew that he was aware of the revelation of his perfidy. She did not know that he was still slightly intoxicated from the debauchery of the night before, but he swayed slightly as he advanced towards her.

"And what's all the trouble with my darling?" he attempted jocosely.

Madge regarded him in stony silence.

"I hear there have been ructions," he went on with pretended ease, "just because—and I admit it frankly—I was a little stewed last night and the pride of the artist in me made be show your picture to a few very intimate and appreciative friends. I admit I was wrong—but don't be angry with me, Ecstacy!"

He stepped closer to her. "How adorable of you to came back so soon!"

Another second, and he would have taken her in his arms, kissed her red mouth, caressed her as in those days of a million years years ago! A million! It seemed so far removed from the present time that to Madge it was as though there had never been any love. There had never been any tenderness, and most certainly there had never been any trust between them.

Her anger was so cold and just that it had almost ceased to be rage, and when she spoke it was more in the frigid tones of a judge pronouncing sentence.

"It is useless, Carroll," she said slowly, "for me to tell you just what sort of a cad you are. In your heart you know it. As for me, I thank God that I found you out before it was too late. Don't feel sorry for me, Carroll, because I have suffered all the pain I am going to know. I have no words to tell you how completely cured I am! I know you now. And to know you for what you are is enough."

He did not reply, but seeing that he had lost her, and hoping to win her back by the lure of his kisses, forcibly he caught her in his arms and pressed her close.

"Let me go! I'll kill you if you don't let me go!" she snarled, with loathing.

Somehow she wriggled free, and the next instant her hand had found the Italian stiletto, which, in happier days, she had so admired.

"Now, let me alone!" she warned him.

His laughter was deliberately insolent as he hoped to sting her now that he had lost her so irrevocably.

"I don't have to watch out," Carroll sneered. "You see, my dear, I am growing bored with your prudery and I was wondering how I could break the affair off without hurting you too much. I thank you, as I have what I want—an exquisite addition to my more serious painting."

He should have placed himself near the glowing canvas, for Madge, who was standing by the easel, turned and slashed at it with her stiletto. Rip!—and the sharp steel plowed through the canvas. Rip!—and it cut the other way. Rip!—rip—and the canvas hung in tatters.

Then, as she shouted vile names after her in impotent wrath, Madge, blinded by sheer fury, ran from the studio and out through the door. Blindly she entered the elevator and descended to the street.

Still heedless of things about her, Madge stepped from the curb, heedless of a big car that was rushing down on her. She knew a sickening sense of crash, a sharp pain, and then black nothingness arose and enveloped her.

Madge's first reaction was wholly feminine. She had been in an accident; was her beauty marred?

A uniformed nurse bent over her; Madge guessed she was in a hospital.

"You are all right in a private room," said the nurse consolingly, as she added the name of the hospital.

"Is my face cut?" Madge demanded plaintively. "Shall I be disfigured?

The nurse was old enough to feel a motherly tenderness for her patient, so her voice was sympathetic as she replied:

"No, my dear! Don't worry about that pretty face of yours. The ligaments of your right leg and ankle are strained, and you have a slight scalp wound which will not show. You must be a good girl now and go back to sleep."

"But my father?" Madge protested.

"All that's been taken care of, dear," the nurse answered. "We telephoned to some names from your little address book: A Miss Storrs is taking care of everything. Now, you drink this and go off to sleep again."

Next morning her thoughts were interrupted by the nurse who entered laden with cardboard boxes, the sort sent out by ultra-chic stores.

"All for you, my dear," the nurse said. "And if I know anything about human nature, these will be better than all the old medicines in the world!"

And, though she would not have admitted it to herself for anything, Madge did watch with interest as the nurse opened those fascinating cardboard boxes.

"But who—who sent all these?" she asked, bewildered, as the first box disclosed masses and masses of dewy violets.

Mr. Winchester, whose car knocked you down," was the reply.

Madge was intently watching the nurse remove the covers from the other boxes.

Negligees? What negligees! Lounging robes—pajamas and nighties, bewildering in their beauty and flowerlike delicacy—and two of the cutest litle boudoir head bands, which effectively could hide those hideous bandages under their lacy foaminess. And mules of brocade with cunning litle curled feathers! Madge was regarding all this luxury with round-eyed amazement, when her father entered the room.

"Who? Why? Madge demanded after he had greeted her almost tearfully. "I don't understand what all these mean," and her gesture included the heaped-up bed and the tastefully appointed room. "Is this man Winchester paying for all this, father? And who is he?"

"The Mr. Winchester — Mr. Michael Winchester," Jonathan Sayre assured his daughter in that tone of reverence with which some people speak of the very, very rich. 'A charming man, my dear! He motored out to see me at the Huttons, getting my address from Frances Storrs—motored out himself—"

"And why shouldn't he?" Madge interrupted. "He knocked me down, didn't he?"

"My dear, you don't understand the situation or his attitude," her father explained gently. "He was honor-struck. Most of the very rich would have handed the affair over to their lawyers and written me a brief note of regret. But Mr. Winchester came himself, and I've never seen a man more cut up. He offered any compensation I thought reasonable, and added that money could not conceivably recompense you for what you have suffered. Those things he has sent you shew a little of what he feels, and I understand he gave a lavish order to the hospital and to the doctors that you are to have everything they can think of to make you well."

"But who is he exactly?" Madge wanted to know. "I admit that he seems to be behaving pretty decently, and I suppose it wasn't his fault that his chauffeur couldn't stop in time. He is this rich society man?"

It occurred to Madge that perhaps it was not altogether the chauffeur's fault. She remembered the blindness of her rage when she had dashed out from that farewell interview with Carroll.

"Michael L. Winchester," her father announced, much as though he were reading from the lives of important men, "is as well known in London and Paris as he is in New York. He has residences in all these cities, and he is fabulously wealthy. Old southern family, too—of Winchester Manor, Fairfax County, Virginia. And his sister married the Duke of Penndale about 10 years ago."

"Well," Madge managed to smile, "it's kind of lucky that if I had to be knocked down I should pick out the car of some old multimillionaire. All these hospital expenses were worrying me."

"Don't give them a thought," Sayre urged his daughter generously, "And your old father would have been able to take care of you. Hutton and I have entirely abandoned that razor, but we have something better—something that will undoubtedly make us both a great deal of money, my dear—a new alarm clock which is bound to be a big thing—a very big thing," and for half an hour Mr. Sayre entertained his daughter with his latest financial dreams.

To be continued Tomorrow.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascarize the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY drug store has them.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Choose Your Exit

HELEN ROWLAND

THERE is always a graceful way OUT! Whether it's getting out of a dinner engagement, crawling out of a love-affair, sneaking out of a pink tea, getting out of marriage or making final exit from life.

* * *

Of course, you can't make divorce really pleasant, or a lovers' quarrel delightful, and you can't make suicide cheerful or dainty. But, at least, you can be sporting and well-bred about them.

* * *

Most of these recent suicides have been so grotesquely or melodramatically staged, that they have looked more like amateur publicity stunts than like actual tragedies.

* * *

Perhaps there is no woman living who has not at some time toyed with the idea of suicide—usually, after some foolish love affair had gone blah. But, just as she was gloating over the vision of herself lying cold and white on the marble slab, another Nice Man always came along and interrupted her!

* * *

Personally, I never could entertain the idea of suicide, after the second cup of coffee in the morning, no matter WHAT kind of a scrap I had had with the Only Man the night before.

* * *

But, if I wanted to commit suicide, I should "choose my exit." I'd find a nice, clean, tidy, lady-like way to do it. I'd never announce openly to the world that I was a QUITTER!

* * *

Jumping off a roof where you may land on the neck of some innocent bystander or plunging into a city reservoir and spoiling the water, is not only unsporting but selfish and inconsiderate. And, going to a boarding-house and using up the landlady's gas for your own personal indulgence—I ask you, is THAT nice?

* * *

Be a THOROUGHBRED! If you think you've lost in the game of life or love, just set your lips in a smile, hold your head a little higher—and WAIT for your chance, to "come back." It always comes! Law-suits and suicides are the side-exits of the poor sports!

How to Keep Well

Croup Attacks Rare Without a Warning

DR. COPELAND

IN my mail recently was a letter from a Pennsylvania newspaper editor. He asked me to prepare an article on croup. "Every time my little boy gets a cold, he develops croup, and I should like to know of preventive means and how best to take care of an attack when it comes," so writes my friend. Croup is not so common a disease now as it used to be. That is to say they used to call a great many ailments croup which we now know for something else. A mild form of diphtheria was known in those days as "membranous croup."

Between the part of the throat which can be seen on opening the mouth, and the lungs, is a portion of the anatomy known as the larynx. The larynx then lies between the base of the tongue and the windpipe.

This space is lined with mucous membrane just as all other parts of the breathing machinery are so lined. Wherever there is mucous membrane it is liable to inflammation.

It is not uncommon for a child between the ages of two and five to be attacked by croup. It is rare indeed for the attack to come on without some warning. In all probability there has been "running" of the nose, a slight cough, and perhaps a little fever.

As I say, this is apt to be the case, but on the other hand, there are attacks which come on with great suddenness. The child awakens soon after the first nap and a slight barking cough is the first evidence of trouble. The cough of a croup patient is peculiar. It has a certain metallic sound, a ringing sound.

The child suffers greatly in his breathing. It is extremely difficult to get the breath. The air whistles through the throat. There is so much swelling of the mucous membrane that there is little space through which the air can pass.

The child is likely to become feverish, the patient is flushed and the pulse is rapid. Difficult breathing frightens the youngster, he cries, is restless, and wants to be carried.

These symptoms may reappear the next night, or for two or three nights in succession. Whenever they come, however, they cause great anxiety to the parents.

In the treatment of croup, the first thing to do is to overcome the swelling of the throat. To this end it is a good thing to fill a tub with water at a temperature of about 100 degrees. Take great pains not to have the water so hot as to scald the child. Try your own elbow in the water and see if it is endurable. Keep the child in this hot bath for 15 or 20 minutes. At the same time apply cold compresses to the throat.

THE HOUR GLASS OF FASHION

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

LIKE an hour glass whose ever shifting sands record the swift flight of time are the ever-changing fashions. Fashion's glass shows an image that changes with each grain of sand that slips through on its way to eternity. One day we see close-cropped hair, the next long curls. Skirts that sweep the ground; then short, so that we wonder how it happened; athletic types change suddenly to frail, clinging feminine vines. And every change brings a new and hidden beauty, or at least, we think it hidden because our attention has never before been called to it.

Yes, Fashion's the breath of life to women. Without it what would we do? But women are not the only ones who follow Fashion's dictates to the last word. Look at the men! Once they were in silks and laces and powdered curls. They slowly and gradually emerged as we now know them. But watch the different types and the styles they affect. There are as many styles for men as there are for women.

So women aren't the only ones who follow Fashion. And I think it's the men mostly who demand the change. But that's life! With just this difference, that it leads to the same place—a heart full of love and happiness for all—particularly the ONE chosen one.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A CONTINUATION OF LOVE'S EMBERS

By ADELE GARRISON

Princess Olina Again Steps Into the Picture

AS I stepped from the hall to the front veranda where my callers had chosen to sit, all three of them sprang to their feet, but Princess Olina, whom almost everybody supposed to be simply Miss Eleanor Lincoln of The Larches, flashed past Mr. Veritzen and his son, Noel, and kissed me with a lack of royal dignity which I am afraid would have appalled the beautiful Queen Olga of Transvania if she could have seen her fugitive daughter's impetuosity.

But the beautiful runaway princess has clung to me—almost literally—ever since the time, when frightened and in deadly peril of Sergius, the arch plotter against royal lives, she confided to me the fantastic, almost unbelievable tale of her escape from the Transvanian royal entourage. Every time I looked at her, I realized the unusual courage and resourcefulness with which this slip of a girl had eluded the search constantly made for her by the royal family of Transvania. Never had it been admitted in Transvania that the favorite princess of the populace had not returned upon the ship which carried her royal family from America after their spectacular tour of this country. A swathed figure—that of Olina's maid—had been carried on board ship, and later been transferred to a secluded country castle, ever since the object of solicitude upon the part of the Transvanians because it was supposed that Olina lay ill there.

But the resourceful princess had changed to a frightened child when she realized that a woman at court had used her to send a cipher message to Sergius, which if it had reached him would have resulted in horror beyond description, including the assassination of her own father and mother.

"What must I do?" she had asked me pitifully the morning after the capture of Sergius. "I will do anything you say even if it is to go back to marry King Albert."

That this was the greatest sacrifice she could make, I knew, for I had listened to her shuddering horror of the old King of Trees whom her mother had selected as her future husband. But with my sympathies thoroughly enlisted for her, I had counseled her against going back home.

"That would be the most foolish thing you could do," I had told her. "Your personal problems haven't been altered by this thing except that you need no longer fear Sergius. And your mother will some time send you the message which you have asked her to put in the personal columns of the New York newspapers, the assurance that you need not marry King Albert. Then you can go home."

But as the days went on, I had felt less sure that she would go home even if her mother should relent. For her infatuation for Noel Veritzen was as strong as was the fantastic determination of the young violinist's father that his son should marry Olina, the daughter of the woman whom Philip Veritzen had worshiped in his strangely shadowed youth.

At Olina's kiss and embrace of me, at the beaming fatuous approval of her every action in Philip Veritzen's eyes, and at the bewildered, almost suffering expression in the dark eyes of his son, I felt again the fantastic sense of something electric in the very atmosphere surrounding these three strangely assorted people. But Olina gave me little time for reflection.

"I really didn't mean to come today," she said, "for I don't believe Mrs. Bickett approves of having people around these days. But when Mr. Veritzen came and wanted me to come over with him and Noel, I was—how do you say it her—plum tickled pink," and I lost no time in accepting their invitation. I do hope it's all right, and how's Junior?

"It's perfectly all right," I assured her heartily. "I'm very glad you could come over, and Junior is getting along beautifully. He hasn't been permitted to get out of bed yet, but he has been sitting up and listening to stories."

"Oh! I'm so glad. But"— she turned with pretty apology to Philip Veritzen. "I've been rattling on so that poor Mr. Veritzen hasn't had a chance even to say 'How do you do?' And he has brought the most marvelous things for Junior!"

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Say "Thank You"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me whether or not it is proper to thank a waitress for any small favor that she may render to you? A friend of mine claims that it is not necessary to thank a servant for favors, but I do not agree with him.

READER.

YOUR instinct is correct, because it is kind. Not to thank anyone who does even the slightest favor for you is boorish and shows that one's social judgment, one's human judgment, is sadly in need of readjustment and regulation. Why, pray, should one not thank a servant for a courtesy, a favor, a kindness? To the person who holds this point of view there is, of course, only one answer: because the person who does this favor for you is a servant. What a point of view, indeed! How thoroughly unworthy! I hope that if any of the readers of this column have this point of view he or she will quickly change it for the kinder and more reasonable one of thanking anyone who is courteous and who does you a favor.

Congratulate Them

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. We are invited to the home of a newly married couple. We were not present at the wedding. What do we say to each one?

2. When serving baked potato is it proper to break the potato open and put butter between the pieces? Or does the guest do this himself?

3. When are the candles lighted on the dinner table? And when blown out?

C. F.

YOU will probably want to give your "best wishes" to the bride and "congratulations" to the groom.

2. If convenient break the potato just before it is served and put the butter inside the break. If you serve your baked potato as a stuffed baked potato, you will find the serving more convenient and vastly more artistic looking.

3. Candles are lighted on the dinner table just before dinner is announced. They are extinguished after the guests have left the dining room.

The mother who could not keep her family well

IT SEEMED as if there was always someone feeling out-of-sorts. Not exactly sick but languid—indifferent to food and irritable. And her husband, who used to enjoy the best of health, was now constantly tired and often discouraged and worried. What could be the matter? was her constant question.

Many a family, due to the lack of bulk in the diet, suffers from constipation. And this evil scourge undermines health and strength—even hope and happiness. It brings throbbing heads and aching backs, dragging feet and slumping shoulders. It often finally leads to untold suffering and disease.

Fortunately thousands of women have found the way to save their families from the evils of constipation. By serving Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—that healthful cereal—in some form every day, constipation is safely relieved and prevented.

It takes "all-bran" to be 100% effective

It is bulk or roughage that combats constipation. ALL-BRAN is practically all-bulk because it is 100 per cent bran. It is so effective. This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the digestive system. At the same time, it gently distends the intestines. Exercising them—sweeping out poisonous wastes. Part-bran products seldom contain a sufficient quantity of bulk to be completely effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100 per cent bran and accomplishes results no part-bran product can equal.

No need for dangerous drugs

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is infinitely better than habit-forming pills and laxatives whose dose must be constantly increased to be effective and which sometimes injure the system. A naturally healthful cereal. To enjoy with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Recipes on package. Mix it with hot cereals. Sprinkle it into soups. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

But don't take chances with part-bran substitutes. At best, they can prove but partially effective. Insist on genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants, cafeterias. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, December 7

THE planetary influences for this day wield but a feeble influence on the tide of commercial progress. The position of Saturn assists industry and labor and bespeaks the favorable attention or assistance of elderly persons or old-established institutions. In affairs of the home and the heart there is an augury of unrest, disappointment and inharmony. Correspondence may cause anxiety.

Those whose birthday it is may find things moving slowly in routine grooves with little of moment excepting in industry or the saturnian labors. There may be benefits from elderly persons or institutions. Home and heart affairs are under a rather unfriendly sway. Be careful with writings.

A child born on this day may be studious and thoughtful and may have a career of industry and mild responsibility, being favored by elders. Its personal matters may not bring entire satisfaction.

No horoscope makes slaves, 'tis but a mirror, shows one image forth, and leaves the future dark with endless "ifs."—George Eliot.

Codfish En Casserole

Wipe the inside of the casserole dish with a cut bud of garlic, then lightly with butter. Rinse and lay in two thick slices of fresh codfish and pour over four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, or melted butter. Cover and put in the oven. Cook for about 20 minutes, then uncover and add pepper, salt, a tablespoonful of anchovies, cut fine, and a tablespoonful of capers. Dot with butter and sprinkle with crumbs, then put back into the oven uncovered to finish cooking. When a delicate brown, cover and serve in the casserole.

Winner!

The artist friend who advised lovely Dorothy Gray, 254 West 12th St., New York City, to enter two recent beauty contests, is probably saying, "I told you so." She won both of them and a movie engagement into the bargain! Too bad, pictures can't show the loveliness of her skin and the gleaming beauty of her dark brown hair, points which, the judges say, swayed their decisions.

"When I consider how people admire my hair now and how different it was not long ago," says Miss Gray, "I can't help telling about it. Dandruff had nearly ruined my hair. It had gotten stringy, dull, and was falling out. My scalp was terribly uncomfortable. Then a friend got me started on this method of caring for the hair which is all the rage among New York girls. Now, I just put a little Danderine on my brush each time I use it. Since I have been doing this regularly, all dandruff has disappeared; my scalp has become perfectly comfortable and healthy; my hair has stopped falling out and has become soft, gleamy and pretty."

Danderine quickly removes that ugly film from your hair, restores its natural color, gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy to dress and keeps it in place. It stops dandruff. It isn't oily and doesn't show. At all drug stores, 35c. A delightful fragranced toilet necessity for the well-groomed girl.

TURFMAN BACK, KIDNAP YARN DOUBTED

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 6.—(INS.)—Ed Alvey, big race track "operator," who was reported kidnaped here Monday night, showed up at his home early today, unharmed and well.

Alvey said he had been seized in front of his home by six men, blindfolded and jammed into an automobile and driven around town for about an hour. Finally, he said, the car stopped and he was taken into a house, which he believed was located across the river in New Albany, Ind.

There, Alvey said, he was held prisoner while his abductors tried to collect $50,000 ransom for his delivery. Unable to get Alvey's wife on the phone, the kidnapers gave up the extortion attempt and set him free, Alvey said.

Alvey insisted he had no idea who his captors were. He said they kept him blindfolded except when he was isolated in a darkened room. He had no chance to see his captors and their voices were unfamiliar.

L. L. Hall, night chief of police, who was on duty when notified that Alvey had been "released," went with a detective to the gambler's home to question him.

After a lengthy interview, Chief Hall said:

"It sounds like a lot of hokum to me. I do not believe the man was kidnaped at all."

Penn. Mother Knew Answer

"Yes sir, I am certainly proud of my little boy," says Mrs. Agnes T. Morris, 272 South 57th st., Philadelphia. "He's the picture of health as you can see, and I feel like he'll always be that way as long as I can get California Fig Syrup. I have used it with him ever since he was a year old. I know what to give him for constipation and his feverish, upset spells because Mother used California Fig Syrup with all of us as children. I have used it freely with my boy and he loves it. It always fixes him up, quick."

In many homes, like this, the third and fourth generations are using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup because it has never failed to do what is expected of it. Nothing so quickly and thoroughly purges a child's system of the souring waste which keeps him cross, feverish, headachy, bilious, half-sick, with coated tongue, bad breath and no appetite or energy as long as it is allowed to remain in the little stomach and bowels. Fig Syrup gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act as Nature intends them to do, and helps build up and strengthen weak, pale and underweight children. Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. The genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years, always bears the word "California."

NEW MACHINE SETS TYPE, MILES DISTANT, BY WIRE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 6.—The "Teletypesetter," a new invention which sets type by telegraph, was publicly demonstrated here today for the first time.

Visualize a machine, similar to a typewriter, operated by a rapid typist. Picture the operator sitting in New York, for example, a news story before him. He starts "punching" tape. Presto! Almost simultaneously the identical story comes out in type in composing rooms miles away. Any distance, in fact, that the ordinary leased telegraph wire will carry without unnecessary interruptions.

The device will revolutionize the printing industry, its inventors believe.

INCREASES OUTPUT

It not only sets the type by telegraph, but will increase several times the production of linotype and intertype type-setting machines, according to the inventors. It automatically operates either of these type-setting devices.

Events of national and international interest may be reported "direct from the scene" to the composing room of newspapers by the teletypesetter. The machine would be particularly applicable for the speedy transmission of the various lists of quotations of the Chicago Board of Trade and the New York Stock Exchange.

Funeral Wreath To Girl Spurned, Man Held

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Denied admission to Pearl Potoskey's funeral, his wreath of roses returned by the dead girl's parents, Sol Hohenthal was arrested yesterday outside the undertaker's parlors where services were being held. A .38 calibre pistol was found in his pocket.

It was at Hohenthal's bachelor apartment in De Soto, Mo., that Miss Potoskey, a beauty shop owner, was found dead Sunday, a bullet hole in her head. Hohenthal said she killed herself.

Still Found in Hunt For Stolen Goods

In addition to stolen goods for which they were searching, county detectives reported finding a 50-gallon still and moonshine on the farm of Mrs. Katie Puldujski, in Harmar township, last night. Mrs. Puldujski, her brothers, Louis and Matthew Kozera, and John Janchick, of Latrobe, are in the county jail. The detectives accompanied Constables Andrew Federkiel and Richard Johnson from the office of Justice of the Peace James A. Herron, of Sharpsburg. The constables were searching for furniture stolen from the summer home of W. F. Bickel, of Westminster place, in the Fox Chapel road two weeks ago.

N. Y. Mayor Goes To Dinner by 'Command

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Before departing for South Bend, Ind., Mayor James J. Walker disclosed why he is going there to attend the dinner of the athletic association of Notre Dame University today.

He is "Uncle Jim" for two Notre Dame students, John and Francis Walker, sons of the Mayor's brother, Dr. William H. Walker. They wrote him two weeks ago that they had been "commanded" by Notre Dame's prefect of discipline to have their uncle, "His Honor the Mayor of New York," present at the annual dinner.

"So," said the Mayor, "what else could I do? A prefect's orders can't be ignored."

JAWORSKI HOPE TIME FADES

Paul Jaworski's last chance to appeal from his conviction and sentence for murder expires today. Forty-five days ago he was sentenced to electrocution for the murder of Isaiah Gump, mine payroll guard, and the time allotted for an appeal will expire without any step being taken to stay the execution of the sentence, unless a last-minute appeal is filed today.

Jaworski has expressed a wish that Gov. Fisher would hurry the electrocution and the Governor has announced that he would lose no time in setting the date, once the time for appeal had expired.

PITTSBURGH ESCAPES INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC

Pittsburgh health officials find no evidence here of an influenza epidemic such as has visited western cities, according to a statement by Dr. Philip E. Marks, superintendent of the Bureau of Infectious Diseases.

Dr. Marks declared this was the season for severe colds, and that the number this year averaged about the same as in past years.

Dr. Marks explained there was a marked similarity between colds and the flu, and that the more serious malady could not be detected until grave complications set in.

Dr. Marks' statement was in reply to a question as to whether the city had received an official warning from the Federal Health Bureau at Washington to guard against a general flu epidemic. He said Pittsburgh had received no such warning.

Mrs. Dorothy Kirkpatrick Harris, of 5487 Hays street, who died Tuesday night, was the first victim of flu reported here recently although she did not contract the disease in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Harris was stricken while en route from San Francisco to New York with her husband, Edward Harris, former music critic of the San Francisco Bulletin.

Mrs. Flanagan died November 1 at her estate in England. Her first husband lost his life in the sinking of the Lusitania.

He referred particularly to Kennedy's invention of the sealed top for blast furnaces, prior to the adoption of which 300 men were killed yearly in furnace explosions.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Week's Only Debut to Be Tomorrow

THESE first few days of December haven't been nearly so full of social events as Thanksgiving week—in fact this is a lot about all there is to it, isn't it? It's to be expected, though. Society usually takes a breathing spell between Thanksgiving and the holidays, to prepare for the Christmas deluge of parties.

There has been a little [illegible] debutante party every day, and last week's side-stepping [illegible] for tomorrow, when Peggy Stevenson will make her formal bow. I must admit that the week has been a dull one. Up to last night the debutante parties have been comparatively few, but [illegible] for the buds, I suppose.

Last night Dorothy Bigler Hillman, of Wightman road, gave a dinner dance [illegible] for Louise McCullough, daughter of the William T. McCullough, of Bennington avenue. Just members of the debutante group were guests, I understand.

Tonight [illegible] there will be [illegible] same group [illegible] affair, with Mr. and Mrs. J. Boggs, of Beechwood boulevard, as hosts. They are having as their guests of honor, Marian Staley, daughter of the Stephen Staleys, of Dallas street, and Louise Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Owen Evans, of South Negley avenue.

A S I hinted a day or two ago, plans are being made to entertain the young folks who will be home from school for the holidays. And now I hear that one date has been announced, down in Sewickley, for such a party. This is [illegible] to be held two days after Christmas in the Allegheny Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. J. Twing Brooks, of Edgeworth, for their daughter, Bertha. Bertha is a junior at Miss Porter's School at Farmington, and, of course, will spend her holidays at home. The guests will be limited to members of the younger set.

Another party for this young group is a dinner which the Randall Turner Van Lears, of Walnut street, Sewickley, will give in their home on Saturday night for their daughter, Mary Wade Van Lear. There will be about [illegible] guests, I believe.

AND by the way, there is scheduled for [illegible] noon down [illegible] Mrs. Walter S. Finlay, Jr., and Mrs. Malcolm H. Bowman, Jr., will be hostesses at this affair, which will be held in the Finlay home in Beaver street.

* * *

PERHAPS you haven't received your copy of the Social Register yet, but they are being sent out, and I was interested particularly in one item in the list of statistics. It seems, according to the Register, that there were fewer marriages this year among the group with which the compilers are especially concerned.

Last year's Register recorded, if I remember rightly, 230 weddings in the local society set, and this year the number has shrunk to 187.

This was a little surprising to me because, while I haven't kept an accurate count of [illegible] the last year had seemed to be especially rich in important weddings. No one can deny the [illegible] ever. There have been announcements of so many interesting engagements in the last few months, though, that I believe [illegible] may tell a different story.

MR. AND MRS. AUBREY JAMES HAYS, of Board Run, Fox Chapel End, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Florence Edith Hays, and Albert Scott Goss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Albert Goss, which was solemnized November 24 in the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth avenue, New York. The bride is a graduate of the Pennsylvania College for Women. Mr. Goss was graduated from Pennsylvania State College and is now studying at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. After January 1 they will be at home in Boston.

ETA CHAPTER of Delta Phi Epsilon, national social sorority of the University of Pittsburgh, will hold its second annual scholarship bridge luncheon in Miss Norma Davidson's [illegible] tomorrow.

* * *

MRS. HERBERT BRIGGS, Jr., of Grant avenue, Ben Avon, is giving a [illegible] tomorrow, the affair being held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

* * *

THE Missionary Society of the First Methodist Protestant Church, Arch avenue and Howard street, Manchester, will [illegible] and luncheon tomorrow [illegible] Mrs. W. J. Wilson, of Chatham.

* * *

THE J. M. Gregg P. T. A. will hold [illegible] and [illegible] tomorrow night [illegible] Gregg school.

Federation Motion Picture Unit Meets

THE first district meeting of the motion picture division of the State Federation, a movement now with the administration of the General Federation, was held here yesterday with Mrs. Ambrose Nevin, [illegible] district chairman in the national organization, and Mrs. Walter Wilson, of Germantown, state chairman, present. A morning session, held in the Schenley Theater, was marked by talks from Mrs. Nevin and Mrs. Harriet Locher, of Washington, director of motion picture service and education for the Stanley Company. The purpose of and proposed plans for the work were explained. Working in co-operation with the California Federation to which are granted previews, the women expect to make recommendations of films or to censure and censor in an effort to prevent the release of undesirable pictures.

Each state, district and individual club is urged to appoint a motion picture chairman, and to devote at least one day a year to motion picture problems and study. Contacts with exhibitors is suggested and special attention is to be paid to Saturday matinee and morning shows for children. Contrasts in old and new pictures and methods were shown on the screen in the morning and after luncheon at the Hotel Schenley an open forum was held at which many questions were answered by the two chairmen and Mrs. Locher. Prizes, Christmas films, safety and ventilation of motion picture houses, Boy and Girl Scout and Girl Reserve co-operation, the "audience" age of children, hostesses for children's matinees—were all brought into the discussion.

THE Church Workers' Association will hold its quarterly meeting at 6:30 tomorrow at the First U. P. Community House, Union avenue. Miss Alida Winkelmann, of the social service department, Allegheny General Hospital, will speak.

IN order that their husbands might share in the program, members of the Women's Fortnightly Review of Mt. Lebanon held their meeting last night instead of in the afternoon. Mrs. Paul Bolger's home in Washington road was the meeting place and the program consisted of motion pictures and a talk by Ross E. Skinner, descriptive of a trip around the world. Miss Sara Jamison Logan contributed contralto solos, accompanied by Mrs. H. B. McBeth.

The petition declaring Sears a spendthrift was filed by his mother, Mrs. Anna L. Sears, who stated she feared her son's habits would lead to the dissipation of his fortune of $800,000.

Judge Horner indicated he would appoint a conservator.

WOMAN FACES NEW CHARGES

Even if Mrs. Ruth Livermore, 22, a former Bessemer, Pa., school teacher, wins her fight to have set aside a life sentence for burglary which she is waging in the Ohio courts, she will have to face a charge of defrauding a Pittsburgh jewelry company, filed here yesterday.

The woman was arrested with her husband, Lester Livermore, of New Castle, for looting a Youngstown, O., home. She pleaded guilty and the husband stood trial. Both were sentenced to life terms in Ohio prisons.

The charge filed here before Alderman George Anderson by Attorney Louis Little yesterday, states that some of the jewelry obtained in the robbery was brought to Pittsburgh by Mrs. Livermore and she borrowed $800 on it from a local company, claiming that it was her own property.

Recipe for fried ham

A famous cook gives these simple directions

IT IS sometimes so simple to improve the flavor of foods. For example, a certain household is noted for its delicious fried ham which is a specialty for Sunday morning breakfast and other "occasions." The cook was asked for the recipe, and here it is:

Take a slice of smoked ham one-half inch or more thick. Sear each side to a golden brown, then reduce the flame and sprinkle two teaspoons of granulated sugar on the exposed side, keeping the flame low so that the sugar does not burn. Then turn the ham and sprinkle two teaspoons of sugar on the other side, keeping the flame low until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved and absorbed into the ham. When it is finished, you will have a delicious ham flavor such as you never found before.

The uses of sugar in bringing out and improving the flavors of foods are practically unlimited. Sweeten cereals and note how much more children enjoy them. Add sugar to grapefruit or any other health-giving fruit that may be harsh to the taste. Sugar does not injure the beneficial acids and vitamins in any way.

A sweet dessert adds a feeling of satisfaction to the meal. Baked fruits, or fruit or berry pies, are especially delicious.

Eat nourishing foods and enjoy them. A famous food authority recommends one raw and one cooked fruit and vegetable a day, sweetened to taste. Sugar is Nature's perfect flavor. The Sugar Institute.

The New Culinary Art of making healthful desserts look even more enticing!

WHAT a colorful dessert! So delicious looking. So attractive. Wouldn't you like to know the secret?

It's really very simple.

Just a package of Royal Fruit Flavored Gelatin. Some whipped cream. Garnished with a maraschino cherry.

And there you have a healthful dessert . . . that certainly looks enticing.

Gelatin, you know, is recommended by doctors because it's so rich in protein . . . the energy-giving, muscle-building nourishment needed in daily diet.

But please do not confuse this new Royal Gelatin with any ordinary brands you may have tried.

It's smoother . . . far more healthful than any you've ever known before.

You can actually taste the real fruit flavor. Here's gelatin with body. With aroma. It's simply delicious . . .

And what a boon and a blessing it is for women who have meals to prepare in a hurry.

With Royal you just stir in hot water and let your ice box do the work.

But remember . . . one word of caution before you buy. All gelatins are not alike. If you want the healthful kind . . . the one with five flavors from the real fresh fruit . . . insist upon Royal. Tell your grocer nothing else will do.

It's made by the same people who make Royal Baking Powder . . . a pure cream of tartar product that's been on your pantry shelf for years.

Thus you can buy with confidence . . . and know that it's a quality product. Order some right now.

WCAE HEARING BEFORE RADIO BOARD POSTPONED

REQUIRE MORE TIME TO GET WITNESSES

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

The WCAE hearing before the Federal Radio Commission was postponed again today, according to word received by M. S. Francis Deberr, manager of the local station. The hearing was scheduled to be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

The postponement came as a distinct disappointment. Last night several officials of the local station and congressmen of the Pittsburgh district were in Washington prepared to testify before the commission tomorrow. Among those were Allan Machesney, chief engineer; Clarence Coleman W. V. Hodge, Congressmen Guy Campbell, Francis Esterly and M. Clyde Kelly and a surprise witness" from New York city.

Not enough time has been given to gather witnesses and complete arrangements that must be made in the hearing, the Radio Commission informed Mrs. Deberr. It is considered altogether likely that the WCAE will ask for its old wavelength of 461.3 meters, in which case it would be necessary to have officials of WSM present at the hearing. WSM is now using this wavelength.

Counsel for WCAE has refused to divulge what appeal will be made before the commission. WCAE, it is to be recalled, is occupying a position on the dial that is forced to share heterodyning hours with small stations near its present wavelength of 245.8 meters. If the station must be moved back to its old wavelength of 461.3 meters.

AVIATION TALK

Walter [illegible], aviation editor of the Sun-Telegraph, will narrate some of Lindbergh's experiences tonight at 7:30 p.m. over WCAE. He will tell also of some of his own experiences in balloon and airplane races.

The scene is a cafe in Vienna, and Schubert just returned from a tour, is happily seated at one of the tables, surrounded by people. Suddenly a poem is brought to his mind. Shakespeare's "Hark, Hark, the lark," and the beauty of it strikes him so forcibly that he immediately demands pencil and paper and composes music to accompany it. The very beautiful girl who has been performing her nightly task as singer sees it and sings it to the delight of everyone present. HOOVER PLAN ON IMMIGRATION HIT BY REED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The first flare up in the Senate over the recent campaign today found a Republican, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, announcing opposition to the proposal of Herbert Hoover for repeal of the national origin's provision of the immigration act.

Democrats were quick to seize on the situation and when Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, asked the Pennsylvanian if he would oppose a recommendation by Mr. Hoover for repeal of the provision he replied:

"Mr. Hoover speaks for himself. I speak for myself. We have votes now and he has not, and I will vote against any attempt to kill this provision."

Senator King, Democrat, Utah, asked if a petition presented by Reed from the Illinois American Legion opposing repeal of the provision, was aimed at Mr. Hoover.

"I don't know whether it is aimed at Mr. Hoover," he answered, "or at Gov. Smith, who opposed any restrictive immigration except based on the 1920 census."

The national origin's provision would go into effect next July, superseding the present system of basing the immigration quota on the census of 1890. Senator Reed said if it went into effect the total of immigration into the country would be reduced by 11,000 annually, or to a total of about 158,855.

Opposition to the national origin's provision, he said, was coming from those groups whose quotas would be reduced under its workings. He said the German, Irish Free State and Scandinavian peoples were leading the opposition because their quotas would be reduced.

Famous Recipe For Stopping a Severe Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, soothes away the inflammation, and loosens the germ-laden phlegm. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

DUKES ALONE MAY HOLD ELECTION

THE idea of abandoning the custom of having college football captains elected by vote of the letter men, and substituting a new plan whereby the field leaders will be appointed from game to game by the coaches, appears to be growing in favor rapidly. Schools that have tried the latest system report that it has worked out to their entire satisfaction, and many others are taking it up in consequence.

Judge W. P. Steffen.

This departure from the long established order of things was based on the belief that the doing away with elections would keep teams free from fraternity politics, and that the vesting of the coaches with the power of appointment would insure the right men being chosen for the places, averting the possibility of captaincies falling to players whose only qualification might be a voting following not due entirely to football merit. Besides, it was figured, possible jealousies and other influences harmful to a team could be eliminated.

AS A result of the success of the new system elsewhere, there is a strong probability that two of Pittsburgh's three college teams will play under appointed captains instead of elected leaders next year. It looks as if the only exception will be Duquesne University, which will stick to the old custom and elect a captain for 1929 before the banquet next Tuesday night.

Carnegie Tech has already announced the adoption of the plan to abandon elections, and hereafter Skibo captains will be appointed by Judge Walter P. Steffen, head coach. Whether he will name a different leader for each succeeding game, or permit one man to serve in two or more contests or through a full season, will depend upon how the experiment works out at the start.

THERE is at least a possibility that Pitt will follow the same course. No decision has yet been reached on the subject, but it is known that the Panther athletic officials, like those of Carnegie, had the plan under consideration a year ago, and have discussed it more than once.

Definite action one way or the other will be taken shortly after the return of W. D. Harrison, director of athletics, and Coach Jock

COMMITTEE MAY FORMULATE POLICY

TORONTO, Dec. 6. — (INS.) — Chattanooga, Tenn., was awarded the 1929 convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues today after a fight so bitter that the pressing question of the draft had to be put over until late in the afternoon.

West Baden, Ind., also entered the lists with a bid for the 1929 meeting, a fact which forced the temporary suspension of the constitution so that the Indiana town's proffer could be considered. This was done because the constitution expressly states that the convention must go to a town holding a franchise in organized baseball. President Mike Sexton finally decided the constitution could be suspended by a majority vote, but, after this was taken in the affirmative, Chattanooga outdrew West Baden in the poll of official votes.

DRAFT ACTION DELAYED

The proposed amendments to the major-minor league agreement, concerning the draft, were then made a special order for consideration later in the afternoon.

In addition to the major league proposals and the modification of Henry Killilea's plan, another solution was advanced today by John Conway Toole, president of the International League. This called for a joint meeting of committees to form the major solution to the problem. Toole said the plan had grown out of a conference he had last night with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees. It was a similar conference that effected the major-minor agreement in 1920.

The Texas League decided to open its 1929 season April 17, one week later than the 1928 opening date. This will make the Texas schedule conform to that of the Southern Association and permit the Dixie series, the South's autumn classic, to get under way without delay.

TOLEDO GETS FRISCH

Sale of Howard Frisch, utility infielder of the Boston Braves to Toledo of the American Association was announced today by Ed Cunningham, secretary of the Braves. The price was not disclosed.

The Bennett brothers, outfielders, have finally been separated as a result of deals at this meeting. Both Herschel Bennett and Red Bennett were members of the Milwaukee club last season.

They broke in together in the Western Association, voted as a unit with Tulsa in the Western League and were promoted to the Browns together. They were still one when the Browns sent them to Milwaukee. Now Red Bennett has been sold to Wichita Falls in the Texas League and Herschel Bennett to Birmingham in the Southern Association.

Another southpaw pitcher changed his base today when Fort Worth sold A. F. (Lefty) Johns to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

TRADE MARKET BRISK

A day of active trading in the baseball market yesterday will result in changes of uniforms for many players next spring. After a deal between Toronto and Detroit was announced by which First Baseman Dale Alexander and Pitcher John Prudhomme went to the Tigers for three players and a reported sum of $100,000, the trades began to fall

RANGERS MEET BUCS HERE TONIGHT

By CARL W. SHATTO.

THE New York Rangers, owned by Tex Rickard and piloted by Lester Patrick, will endeavor to show Pittsburghers how world championships are won at Duquesne Garden tonight when the kings of hockeydom meet the revamped Pirates of Leonard and Cleghorn. The game will mark the first appearance here of the Rangers since they won the world title last spring, and although the invaders are quite comfortably crippled, they still boast enough healthy talent to make them a serious threat.

While the Rangers are crippled physically, the Pirates are crippled only in spirit, and of the Bucs this remised, Manager Cleghorn suffers most. Manager Cleghorn's suffering, the result of watching his skaters' non-too-robust efforts to score goals, is so great that he has decided to change the Pirate lineup in an effort to obtain relief.

BUC LINEUP CHANGED

In previous games of this season the Pirates' starting front line has been made up of Hib Milks at center, Harold Darragh at left wing, and Cotton at right wing, but tonight Milks will replace Cotton at wing and Herb Drury will be promoted from the spares to fill Milks' shoes at center. Hib is a winger by nature. His parents brought him up to be a wingman and it was as a wingman that he won his way into the big time. Milks was anything but a "bust" as a center, but Pilot Odie is confident he will return to his natural position will increase Hib's value.

TARTANS ALSO SUN-TELE CHOICES

By JESS CARVER.

AFTER the hammerings and bootings that three of the prides of the East—New York U., Army and Georgetown—took at the hands of Middle and Far Western foemen in the closing battles of the 1928 grid campaign, the selection of an all-Eastern eleven is likely to be greeted with polite yawns. In fact, most of these mythical all-star teams are being given the "ice box stare" by the boys, who'd much rather toss a handfull of names in a hat and pick their own.

Aside from one or two positions where this correspondent has been able to compare the candidates by seeing them in action, the accompanying all-Eastern eleven was chosen from information garnered from leading coaches, officials and from critics outside of this particular territory.

Inasmuch as it is far simpler to select an all-star team from the Eastern sector than it is to pick an all-America, it has been possible to make a more fair and careful selection of the outstanding players. There have been players on the caliber of Harpster, Getto, Lassman, Strong and Cagle who cannot be kept off any all-Eastern, or for that matter, any all-America eleven.

PLAYERS CONSISTENT

At the same time, there were a flock of linemen and backs who had to be considered for the remaining positions. The main qualification demanded of the men placed on the Sun-Telegraph all-Eastern first eleven was consistency. I do not believe that you can point to a man on the team who was not a steady, dependable football player.

[illegible] was the material which made [illegible] possible. [illegible] that many [illegible] be players of specialty. Had to be passed up. Especially was this true of the backfield. Backs seem to be the limelight. Its a cough and [illegible] the most popular way in the world to become [illegible].

THE BACKFIELDS

Cagle, Strong, Harpster and Scull have everything [illegible] a star backfield quartet. Kenneth Strong has been a power since he started football competition here in Pittsburgh with Jock Sutherland's Panthers. He is a triple-threat star, a great [illegible] and a brainy [illegible]. Harpster [illegible] the past season [illegible] Tech [illegible] strong [illegible] perfect [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FORMER STATE STAR COACH AT FLORIDA

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

WE'VE heard and read a lot about the great Florida eleven, which is contesting with Boston College and Georgia Tech the right to be acclaimed the Eastern champion on the strength of an undefeated and untied record. Did you know the identity of the "Gators" line coach? He's none other than Joe Bedenk, former Penn State guard, who made the late Walter Camp's all-America team in 1923. He's stepping right along, is Joe. Charley Buchman, former Notre Dame star, is head coach.

KNUTE LIKES 'EM ROUGH

They tell a sweet story about Knute Rockne and how he likes his football players, which is only one way—rough.

The great Knute hates anything effeminate. It's a pet hobby.

One day there trotted out for the Irish squad a recruit who already particularly impress the coach, Nobob of Notre Dome.

"And what might your name be?" asked Knute.

"Smith," was the reply.

"What do you play?"

"Tackle."

"You're kinda light for a tackle, aren't you?"

"Maybe, but I'm fast but I'm kinda rough."

"Go in there and show me."

Smith did. He made good and became an all-America standout.

VETS ACTIVE IN RING

Perhaps you've noticed (and perhaps you haven't) the number of veterans who are back in fighting togs these nights. Last Monday, for instance, we find Johnny Irish, former dual champion, taking a licking down New England way. Battling Levinsky, sitting in Baltimore and dishing out all of York, Pa., winning in a return bout. And, tomorrow night, Jack Britton, venerable former welterweight champion, goes to the post again in Boston. The fight game certainly is a fine place for young fellows with about 20 years' experience behind them.

NEW FOOTBALL WRINKLE

It remained for Joe McKenney, coach of the undefeated Boston College eleven, and, incidentally, the youngest big college coach in the business, to pull a new wrinkle in his closing game of the campaign against Holy Cross at Boston last Saturday. It consisted of having a decoy punt receiver playing back to fool the opposing team, to prevent a rush. The stunt worked out excellently, according to reports, and the wonder is that some of our so-called coaching geniuses haven't thought of it before.

As Boston College worked the trick, Weston and Creeden would stand back on a line about 15 yards apart under Clancy's punts. Weston would cup his hands as if to haul in the descending ball, keep his eyes on it and then shoot for a sideline. Creeden, all the while standing still. This maneuver, by Weston, would draw the Holy Cross ends and other tacklers rushing up the field over toward the sideline, leaving Creeden standing under the punt and with a clear field before him. With the opposition chasing Weston, Creeden would make the catch and break away. He made a number of fine returns.

A NEW "MOST VALUABLE"

In view of the fact that Burleigh Grimes, the Pirates' hard-working pitcher, finished no better than third in the race for the most valuable player award in the National League this year, a number of sore critics have suggested that a separate prize be hung up for the most valuable pitcher each season. Let's go us go a little further. How about a fact, a draw might have been the most valuable award for the most satisfactory verdict. There is no question that Belanger outfought Davies. But there is also no question that Davies outboxed Belanger."

Davies was in trouble in the fifth round, on the verge of a knockout, but rallied and fought on courageously despite a badly cut lip and he had made up lost ground and was slightly on the lead going into the last session when the hard-hitting Belanger copped him again and had him woozy. That final flurry turned the battle in Belanger's favor. And even at that, one of the judges voted for Davies, and, according to the accounts of the bout, the decision in favor of Belanger was unpopular with the fans, who booed it.

The club is going to bring back Willie either for a return bout with Belanger or for a meeting with Steve Hocco, the winner to box Frankie Genaro in the title match.

MR. HANSEN PASSES ON

It was just too bad that Knute Hansen couldn't win that vacant heavyweight championship by acclamation in New York after his phenomenal feat of snuffing out Fearless Phil Scott in one round. It's that opposition is the only chance he has of ever annexing it. When he tumbled to K. O. Christner in eight rounds in Cleveland, Tuesday night, he eliminated himself in a highly satisfactory manner, for Mr. Christner is no great shucks as a contender. He's just a puncher who didn't get into the game until late in life and therefore finds whatever furore he may have largely behind him. Sidy Seifert has beaten him and Herr Christner seemingly doesn't want any part of Ike McFowler, the Negro wrecker of hopes of Johnstown, for he has asked for an impossible guarantee to engage Ike in battle in the Flood City. If the tall and willowy Dane, the celebrated Knute, can't do any better than get himself shellacked through eight rounds and then deposited for the count by such as Mr. Christner, the heavyweight title is not for him.

PIRATES' SPRING CARD SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

AFTER experimenting in a sometimes unsatisfactory manner through several years, the Pirate officials finally have evolved a spring training schedule that sparkles, the only weakness being in the advisability of playing so many games in San Francisco.

Aside from the 11 games scheduled at the site of the Golden Gate, the Buccos have an exceptional preparatory card worked out for them, and it is altogether possible that the long series in San Francisco will come out O. K.

The games with the Seals and Missions last season, nevertheless, appear to have had a sustained bad effect on the physical being of the Bushwhackers. Through five or six days the players were forced into idleness on account of a wet period that reached the far-western port while the National Leaguers were in the city.

Practically every pitcher on the squad and many of the other performers lost the fine condition they had attained while sojourning in Paso Robles. At Los Angeles they encountered favorable weather, but on the whole the team played like a second-division entry and this stride was reflected in their work, until after Memorial Day had passed.

MAY GET WET WEATHER

If the teams run into another seige of wet weather in San Francisco, the fans will not accept any excuses in view of the previous experience.

Be that as it may there will be much satisfaction expressed over the training card by the players. The elimination of the "one-night stands" is sure to make a hit with the athletes, and the many battles scheduled with major league clubs will prove a sure-fire hit. In these games the Buccos will be looking at the kind of pitching they are accustomed to see when the bell rings. As a rule the Pirates have to face a flock of "throwers" in the springtime who are far removed from the stuff that is served them once the campaign gets under way.

The two contests with the Giants and the one with the Yankees are high spots in the training card, not to mention the six battles carded with the Tigers in several cities of the Southland. And the four clashes with Memphis that wind up the preparatory season are to be commended. The Memphis club has a fine ball park and at that late period the Chick pitchers are generally doing their stuff like stars.

Three rousing cheers for Mike McGlick,
And make the eagle scream;
He coached a squad and didn't pick
An all-America team.

Lindbergh is the only citizen who could cover enough ground necessary to qualify as a picker and, like Moran and Mack, he just couldn't be bothered about it.

It's getting so that as soon as a player on a big college outfit recovers a fumble he is boomed as an all-America candidate.

Then there is the obscure college marvel who plays like Thorpe in a dozen games and the only notice he gets is a letter to come home as dad is out of work.

A current article in a well-known magazine and written by a famous coach telling of the under-cover methods used to recompense the lads who star for the football team.

Why not remove this veil surrounding something that is wrong only in its secrecy. To many folks the idea of a poor boy thus getting an education he would not otherwise acquire, is highly commendable.

LONG'S SPORT COMMENT

Sutherland, who went to Philadelphia to attend the annual meeting of the Eastern Association for the Selection of Football Officials.

Ching Johnson.

THOUGH the New York Rangers, world hockey champions and holders of the Stanley Cup, have lost three games in a row and will be without the services of Ching Johnson, star defense man, not to mention that the fact that Taffy Abel also is in such a crippled condition that he is being used only in emergencies, the Pittsburgh team cannot take victory for granted in tonight's clash at Duquesne Garden. Young Miles Lane, Dartmouth recruit, and Leo Bourgault make a capable pair of defense men, the Cook brothers and Boucher are dangerous as ever on the forward line, and spurred on by a determination to break their losing streak the New Yorkers, even in their weakened state, are apt to offer a stiff resistance that will not be overcome by any ordinary hockey. It behooves the Bucs to travel at top speed all the way and to rid themselves of any belief they may be entertaining that tonight's game can be counted as won before it starts.

SOME sort of jinx has been trailing the Ranger defense department during the three seasons of that team's membership in the National League. In the first campaign Johnson was out for some time with a broken collar bone, and during the early part of last season a fractured wrist kept Abel on the shelf for a long period. Now Johnson has a cracked ankle, and Abel is nursing a gashed foot.

With Lane holding down a defense post for the visitors, Pittsburgh fans will have their initial opportunity of seeing the former Dartmouth athlete in action on the ice and to get some first-hand information on the ancient question as to what chance a collegian has to make good in professional hockey. Lane and Abel are the only American-born players in the National League.

FARM operators in baseball continue to try to kid the public and to imagine that they are getting away with it. Out of the gathering of minor leaguers in Toronto, Ont., yesterday came the announcement that the Detroit club had exercised its option on Pitcher Johnny Prodhomme and First Baseman Dale Alexander, of the Toronto club, and purchased the pair for $100,000 in cash and three players to be named later.

It would sound like a sizeable deal were it not for the trivial fact that the Toronto team is owned and controlled by the Detroit club, and that the latter can take anything it wants from the Canadian outfit at any time without spending $100,000 or any other sum, unless, for the sake of appearances, it makes the grandstand play of taking the money out of one of its pockets and putting it in another.

Joe McKenney.

WHEN the outstanding coaching achievements of 1928 in football are listed, some measure of notice must be given to what young Joe McKenney accomplished at Boston College. Though his team was denied a rating as the winner of the Eastern championship by reason of the fact that the schedule played could hardly be termed a major one, the boy coach—he is only in his early 20's—deserves a heap of credit for what he did in his first year as successor to Leo Daley. It was no mean feat to carry his eleven through a nine-game schedule without a defeat or a tie, even though such foemen as Catholic University, Navy, Duke, Boston University, Manhattan, Fordham, Connecticut Aggies and Holy Cross are not accepted by the experts as "major opponents."

DESPITE the defeat suffered by Carnegie Tech in its final game of the season with New York University, at least one of the Eastern football authorities maintains that the Skibos are entitled to recognition as the Eastern champions for the year. George Currie says in the Brooklyn Eagle that he "is pleased to award the fanciful laurels and mythical crown of the Eastern football championship to the Carnegie Institute of Technology, to have and to hold until the autumn of 1929.

Continuing, Currie writes: "So far as the East is concerned, and don't let them tell you it has been so definitely outclassed by the Pacific Coast or the South, the Skibos turned in what must be accepted as the best performance. Of course, Carnegie Tech lost to N. Y. U., but the Violet lost to Georgetown and the Oregon Aggies. On the record, Carnegie Tech shows up best. Ranking the teams according to performance, with the number of major games confronting them, one can hardly escape awarding Carnegie such a classification."

AS USUAL, football men are finding fault with some of the all-star teams picked by coaches and critics in various parts of the country. One source of objection is the almost general failure to give Lloyd Brazil, Detroit halfback, anything more than honorable mention. Some of the pickers did not give him even that, just as Fesler, Ohio State's remarkable end, was overlooked by many.

One of the country's most prominent coaches expressed this opinion while in Pittsburgh: "I saw both Brazil and Strong play and to my mind Brazil is the better of the two, at least he is fully the equal of Strong. He can do everything that Strong can do."

John A. Heydler.

JOHN A. HEYDLER, president of the senior major baseball league, expressed surprise at the report from Miami, Fla., that Bill Klem had announced a decision to resign as a member of the National League staff of umpires, after a quarter of a century of service. Heydler admitted that Klem had shown some ill feeling in October because he was not given a world series assignment this year, but said he had not gone so far as to threaten to resign. "Klem is a great umpire," Heydler said. "I hope that he has been misquoted. If he lives up to the rules of the National League he can remain on the umpiring staff as long as he likes. It is not an easy matter to find umpires who equal Klem in ability, fearlessness and integrity. The reason why I did not select him as one of the umpires for the 1928 world series was that I wanted to give another official an opportunity. There was nothing personal against Klem, and I regret that he has taken the matter to heart."

Rankin to Captain Grove City Eleven

GROVE CITY, Pa., Dec. 6—Marcus Rankin of Uniontown, end on the Grove City College football team the past two years, will lead the 1929 eleven. Marcus was selected at a dinner given the players by President W. M. Ketler.

Rankin has won much fame in basketball and football since he entered the local school and the past fall was highly instrumental in Grove City's clean record. It has been announced that he will not play basketball this winter.

Valley Tigers Play At Oakmont Sunday

The Conley Valley Tigers will be the attraction at Oakmont, opposing the Patrizio aggregation, Sunday afternoon. The Valley Tigers are one of the outstanding gridiron machines of the district and their appearance at Oakmont should attract a big crowd.

The Tigers held the Lawrenceville Mohawks to an 0-0 score, and then Oakmont defeated the Mohawks by a couple of touchdowns, so this battle should be worth while.

The game will start at 2:30 and be handled by Central Board officials.

Why risk fade-away freeze protection?

—when it is so easy to make your car permanently freeze-proof?

YOU wouldn't hire a watchman that sneaked away. Why put up with an anti-freeze that stealthily evaporates? Its protection fades away and leaves your car at the mercy of the cold. You risk a frozen radiator, a cracked cylinder block, a broken pump. Your car goes out of commission. Repair bills are costly.

Glycerine won't evaporate

Yet it is so easy to make your car permanently freeze-proof. One filling of Radiator Glycerine will protect it for the entire winter. Glycerine won't evaporate. Won't boil off. You don't have to keep replacing it. You get positive permanent protection. You don't guess, you know your car is safe.

Think of the peace of mind this gives you. A winter without freeze-up worries.

The safe anti-freeze

Remember, too, that Radiator Glycerine is as safe for your car as water. It won't hurt the lacquer finish. It won't smell up your car. It has no mysterious ingredients to damage the cooling system.

Put Radiator Glycerine in your car now and get a whole winter's protection. Just be sure the cooling system does not leak so it is not wasted. Follow the simple instructions and get perfect results.

Put it in NOW

Amundsen used Radiator Glycerine at the North Pole. It meets the U. S. Bureau of Standards requirements of a perfect anti-freeze. Your garage probably has it. Get full information from any distributor listed here. Act to-day.

KLEIN TO PLAY WITH COUNTY CHAMPS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

EDDIE KLEIN, former star forward of the Duquesne Saltzers, will make his bow in first-class professional basketball next Monday night when he appears in the lineup of the Duquesne Lafayettes against the Goldensons in one of the two opening games scheduled in the reorganized Allegheny County League.

Starting out as an amateur with the Saltzers Klein has developed rapidly into one of the best forwards playing independent basketball hereabouts. His brilliant work with the Saltzers played an important part in placing that team among the leaders in amateur basketball hereabouts. An excellent shot and a fine floor man, Klein should fit in nicely with Coach Ed Minnick's Scarlet Hurricane this winter.

The Lafayettes, twice winners of the County League championship, will take the floor against the Goldensons, composed mainly of former Morry stars, with a lineup considerably changed from that which represented the club last winter. Ganzy Benedict and Howy Morrow are no longer available, but their places have been filled capably by newcomers.

In the other opening game, the Miele-Franchina Club will entertain the Reliance Life passers on the Columbus Temple floor. Both teams have obtained the services of prominent local professional stars and are expected to present a strong front in Monday night's Saltzers played an important part in contest. Willie Cotz has been chosen captain of the Miele-Franchina Club.

NAME REFEREES

Only three referees will handle the Allegheny County League games this winter, Leo Mackey, Bill Griffith and Al Speer being the unanimous choices of the league members.

Two newcomers will make their debut in the opening game of the Pittsburgh & Ohio Valley League tomorrow night, the M. J. Conleys, formerly known as the Schwartz Valley Club, opposing Immaculate Heart on the latter's floor in Brereton avenue.

The Pittsburgh Lyceum League season gets under way tonight when St. Joseph's Protectory meets the Canevin Club at home, Ray Hickey, former star at Mt. Union College, is captain of the Protectory team, which includes Boots Campbell, last year Sharpsburg star; Miller, Modispacher, Gallagher and several other prominent players. Teams desiring games with Protectory write J. F. Lyons, 2030 Clark building, or Call Atlantic 0622.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass team, of Creighton, Pa., desires games at home and abroad with first-class teams. Write Walter Laudin, 302 Main street, Tarentum, Pa., or call Tarentum 461.

OHIO AND IOWA STARS TO BE PROTESTED

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Question as to the eligibility of two football stars, Mayes McLain, of Iowa, and Allan Holman, of Ohio State, threatens to cause discord among Big Ten coaches at their annual conference here tomorrow and Saturday.

Alumni of several schools in the conference are known to have protested against the two players, charging they were ineligible because they already had played football on other college teams.

McLain, Iowa's Cherokee Indian fullback, played with the Haskell Indians for two seasons before entering Iowa. While the Big Ten has ruled Haskell to be a preparatory school, those who protest against McLain point out that Haskell plays against other colleges of importance and should be classed as a college.

Holman attended Iowa State College before entering Ohio State and several Iowa alumni have protested to Commissioner John R. Griffiths that the Big Ten rule, whereby a player transfering to the Western Conference from another college must be eligible scholastically and attend his new school two years before he can play Big Ten football, was violated in his case.

Mushy Callahan, Champion, Quits Ring

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(INS.)—Mushy Callahan, world junior-welterweight champion, has retired from the ring, according to word received here by friends of Eddie Sears, manager of Callahan. Sears is in Los Angeles, Callahan's home town.

Sears said he had persuaded Callahan to go into business in Los Angeles rather than risk injury in the ring. The fighter's retirement will cost him and Sears something like $10,000, as the result of the cancellation of his proposed bouts with Jimmy McLarnin and Ruby Goldstein here, which had been expected to draw huge gates.

tuck and fast about the lobby of the convention hotel. Toronto will get First Baseman Sweeney from Detroit and two pitchers whose names have not been announced.

A trade between the Boston Red Sox and St. Paul of the American Association involved five players, the identity of one not being revealed. Bryan (Slim) Harriss, one of the tallest pitchers in baseball, and Third Baseman Bill Rogell were sent to the Saints in exchange for Alex Geaston, a catcher, and Russel Scarritt, an outfielder. A catcher will be supplied by the Red Sox later.

The St. Louis Browns sold Pitcher Walter Beck to Buffalo of the International League and the Phillies sent two pitchers and an outfielder to the Pacific Coast League. The pitchers, Augie Walsh and Russell Miller, will get tickets to Los Angeles, while Art Jahn goes to Portland.

BUCS SELL MULLIGAN

The Mission Club of the Pacific Coast League bought Eddie Mulligan, an infielder, from Pittsburgh.

Bernie Neis was bought by the Cincinnati Reds from Seattle, but it was believed that the Reds outfielder would step at Columbus, the American Association farm of the Reds.

A transfer of a major league player to a minor club sent Johnny Butler, former Brooklyn and Chicago infielder, to Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League.

Another former major leaguer officially became a manager when Jack Bentley, former Giant southpaw and later with Newark, was named to pilot the York team of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

A trade between American Association and International League clubs was completed with difficulty. Indianapolis proposed to give First Baseman Maurice (Dick) Burrus and Catcher Paul Florence to Rochester for Catcher Monyhan. The Columbus club, however, refused to waive on Florence and not until last night could President Jim Perry prevail on President Joe Carr to let the former Georgetown University catcher pass out of the league.

After Bert Niehoff had been elected by the gallery as the manager of the Louisville club of the American Association, the men who do the hiring and firing for the Colonels stepped in an turned the job over to Alan Sothoron, former coach of the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves, and a great pitcher when he was in his prime as an athlete.

One of the early deals engineered today saw Bill Marriott, infielder, Maurice Archdeacon, outfielder, and Jim Brice, pitcher, land with Atlanta. This was achieved in a somewhat circuitous manner, Marriott being obtained by Buffalo from Toledo and shipped south with the other pair. Archdeacon, who has had a trial with the White Sox and other major league clubs, is reputed to be the fastest man in baseball. Marriott has been up with the Dodgers.

Worters May Play In Game Tonight

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(INS.)—Although the board of governors of the National Hockey League yesterday sustained President Frank Calder's ruling that Goalie Roy Worters cannot play with the New York Americans because he was under suspension when obtained from Pittsburgh in a trade, Worters is expected to be in the New York line-up against the Maroons in Montreal tonight. Before leaving for Montreal today Calder intimated that, "The principle of the thing having been upheld," he might relent and allow the Americans to use Worters.

Greene to Captain 1929 Yale Team

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 6.—(INS.)—W. W. (Piper) Greene, of Huntington, Pa., was elected captain of Yale's 1929 football team for 1929 here this afternoon when the letter men of the 1928 squad met for their final picture. Greene plays guard and was the only Yale player to be mentioned as outstanding in the season just ended.

recovered from the arm injury that has kept him idle for the past week and is ready for action. In discussing possible lineup changes, Manager Cleghorn said that MacKay rather than Drury would have been given the starting line position had he shown his ability to team up with Tex White. The MacKay-White combination has given indication of packing a real scoring punch, and Cleghorn hesitates to break it up. With a skilled performer such as Cotton assisting Tex and Mickey, the spare line should be fast and dangerous.

RANGERS REVAMPED

The Pirate defense, too, should be at its best for Bert McCaffery, who played but little against Chicago Saturday, is back in form and will be paired with Holway in the starting lineup. And Joe Miller has given no indication of weakening at goal.

The Rangers, too, will present a revamped lineup, but their changes were forced on Manager Patrick by injuries to his stars. Ching Johnson, the backbone of the New Yorkers defense and one of the greatest performers in the league, is out with a broken ankle sustained at Montreal last Saturday, and the robust Taffy Abel, Patrick's other regular defender, has not been in condition since the early days of the race. Taffy performed as a spare at Boston Tuesday, and probably will see some action tonight.

Ching Johnson's great value to the Rangers is shown in the Rangers' record for the last three games. They have done nothing other than lose since he was forced out. Ching is a great player both on the offense and the defense, and his absence seems to have weakened the morale of the champions.

Myles Lane, former football satellite at Dartmouth will be at Johnson's defense post tonight. As a gridder, Lane was a triple-threat yardage eater, and he did not doff his fondness for violent action when he donned his skates. Although he has played in comparatively few games, he is one of the most-penalized men in the circuit. His record is three or more penalties a game, and most of the penalties have been imposed because he insists on using gridiron tactics on the ice. He is certain to give the fans plenty of action. Short and stocky Leo Bourgault will pair with Lane, with Abel doing relief work.

Mickey Roach, reported to be the highest salaried goalie in the game, will be in the Ranger nets. Mickey is ranked with the best of goalies, and Patrick had to give Toronto Lorne Chabot and several grand before he could convince the Leafs that Roach's place was in a New York uniform.

REAL GRUDGE FIGHT

If there can be such a thing as a grudge game in a sport which knows nothing other than rough and bitter play, tonight's game should undoubtedly be the one. In games in New York recently, which the Rangers won by 2-0, the Bucs accused their foemen of everything this side of manslaughter, and Manager Cleghorn came out of the fracas with a $100 fine. The Bucs are eager to find out whether or not revenge is as sweet as it is rumored to be.

Local fans know the champions to be one of the best "action" teams in the sport, and another capacity crowd probably will be in order.

game. Baysinger could be depended upon for the passing and the punting. Vansa has proved himself a capable ball carrier and defense back. Murrell, aside from a bad day against Stanford, was a consistent player, both at ball toting and kicking. Wittmer was the big star of the Princeton season.

Bennett, Marsters, Berkman, Lloyd, Karels, Parkinson, Brumbaugh and a host of other backs displayed varied abilities at times, but none of them were as consistently good as the eight names on the first two elevens.

THE ENDS

Donchess, of Pitt and Barna, of Hobart, have been named by more than one competent critic as the best wings of the year. Barna, almost unheralded, has been as consistent a performer as can be found. He is a sterling defensive end, gets down the field well under kicks and is a good pass receiver. He has shown with particular brilliance against Syracuse, the major game on the Hobart schedule. Donchess' play was outstanding throughout the year. Against Nebraska, Wash-Jeff and Syracuse, Joe gave all-America exhibitions of end play.

Barrabee, Provincial, Rosenzweig, Carlmark, Guarino and Lawler are wings who might be inserted into the lineup without weakening the team in the slightest. Rosenzweig was better on the offense than the defense, though he will gain value in the latter department as he adds to his experience.

THE TACKLES

Mike Getto and Lassman were the outstanding tackle players of the year. Aside from the State game, when he suffered a broken shoulder on the first play of the game, Getto starred in every Pitt contest. His performances against Tech, Wash-Jeff and Nebraska were as fine as those given by any Pitt lineman in history.

Lassman's value to New York was never more strongly realized than in the game against the Oregon Aggies when he was absent. When a player is missed, then is when his true value is fixed.

Sprague of Army, Grant, Eddy, Douds and Tully and Highberger were fine linemen. Sprague was headed for all-America honors until he struck Stanford—or rather, until Stanford struck him. Eddy was the main bulwark of the Yale line. Tully rose from a fourth-string lineman to a varsity berth, and ended the season worthy of being ranked close to Getto. Highberger played fine football for Tech as a sophomore, giving promise of greater power as he gains in experience.

THE GUARDS

Alex Fox of Pitt may not have been the heaviest guard in the East, but he was certainly the most consistent. His play on the offense—coming out of the line to get into the interference—and his blocking and cupping and charging down kicks was all that could be desired. He went through the entire year without a bad day. And no one made any huge gains through his position when Alex was on the defense, either.

Burke of Navy was highly ranked by critics who followed him throughout the campaign. He held Notre Dame in check at Chicago and aided greatly in downing Princeton.

Dumont, of Colgate, John Dresher, of Tech, Meisel, of West Virginia, Hammack of Army and Green, of Yale were all good guards, hard charging on the offense and smart plungers and alert at defensive play.

THE CENTERS

Chuck Howe, of Princeton, and a native of Beaver Falls, looms as the outstanding center of the year, and is very likely to be almost a unanimous all-America choice. Wetzstein, of Pennsylvania, Charlesworth, of Yale, Aschman, of Wash-Jeff and Tichnor, of Harvard were fine pivot men. Aschman was handicapped from obtaining higher rating through injuries which kept him out of two or three important games.

With Harpster directing the play of the fleet-footed Cagle, Strong and Scull carrying the ball, behind such a line as Getto, Donchess, Fox, Burke, Howe, Lassman and Barrabee would furnish this team would be a difficult one to beat. With such an array of stars, the attack could be deceptive and tremendously powerful at the same time.

Imagine trying to stop Strong on one of his off-tackle smashes, Scull on the third and then look up a Harpster pass or block a Harpster punt after that. Try and do it.

Ownership Not Essential to Success, Parson Claims.

By B. C. FORBES

WHEN a young man enters a steel plant he does not reason that his only opportunity lies in becoming the owner of a steel mill. The employe in a motor plant does not necessarily figure upon becoming the owner of a gigantic automobile manufacturing enterprise. The average oil worker doesn't set as his only goal the acquisition of vast oil properties. The young railway employe rarely aspires to ownership of a great railway system.

The bank clerk or young officer does not tell himself that, unless he can make enough money to buy a bank of his own, his career will have been disappointing. The newspaper reporter or other employe doesn't view his lot as having as its goal the shekel-handed purchase of the property. The mechanic in a locomotive shop doesn't regard as his natural objective the setting up of an establishment of his own for turning out locomotives. The paper mill employe does not customarily feel that his only hope in life is to amass the large amount of capital necessary to buy paper-making machinery of his own.

Hubert T. Parson, president of Woolworth's, asks: why it is considered necessary to become the sole owner of a store in order to achieve success in the retail field.

He thus raises an interesting point, doesn't he?

INDIVIDUAL ownership of a business is becoming less common in nearly all lines of activity. The one-man concern is being frequently pushed aside by the spread of larger enterprises. Even firms are giving way in many directions to incorporations. We see, too, many stable and even large companies being absorbed by huge consolidations.

THE current is running strongly toward nationwide organizations. Improved transportation, the economies of mass production, the availability of capital in very large amounts, all are telling against small local operations and stimulating national operations. This trend is strikingly in evidence in manufacturing and distribution as well as in retailing.

IS it not true, however, that we hear few complaints that large-scale business is killing opportunity except the complaints coming from retail merchants? Men engaged in most other lines apparently take it for granted that the movement towards bigness, towards cooperative effort, towards corporate ownership is inevitable and therefore to be accepted philosophically.

FRANKLY, I personally have looked upon this economic ground swell towards bigness with sentimental misgiving. I have found myself resenting the passing from our social system of so many "independent" small business men. I confess that I had not reasoned things out as Mr. Parson does in these statements, voiced in the Chain Store Age:

"Assuming for the sake of argument that the development of the chain store system might ultimately wipe out the independent retailer entirely, who shall say that would be an unmixed calamity?

"What is there about retailing which makes ownership such an important feature? One does not have to own a railroad in order to work at a successful career in the railroad field. You don't have to own a bank to achieve success in the financial field. By far the greater number of successful men in every line of industry and commerce are not employes of the companies with which they are connected, no matter how exalted may be their positions they occupy.

"The idea that it is necessary to own a store in order to achieve success in the retail field has absolutely nothing to support it. Compared with the uncertainty which confronts the average storekeeper, the many risks he runs and the obvious limitations of his vocation, the opportunity offered by a strong corporate retail enterprise whether it be in the chain store field, the department store field, the mail order field or any other branch of the business would seem to me to be far superior.

"Of course, if a man lacks ability, or character, or perseverance or ambition or any other of the basic qualities that are essential to success, he can't expect to go very far no matter what line of endeavor he follows.

"But if a man has in him the stuff that success is made of, I think of no form of retailing that offers better prospects than the chain store field."

THE young man who starts a store of his own these days does so with his eyes open. It is not so much the lot of the young men as the fate of the older men who established stores before the chain store age which evokes one's sympathy. However, I suppose that nothing is to be gained by blindly refusing to face the stern facts.

Change is the ever-operating law in all industry and commerce. It is for each of us to realize that adaptability is the life of business.

STOCKS TOPPLE AS RATE GOES TO 12 P. C.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—(AP)—Acute weakness developed in today's stock market after "bulls" had made an ineffectual attempt to rally the general list by marking up a few high priced specialties to new high records. Early gains, which ran from 1 to nearly 14 points, were cut down or wiped out and a long list of issues soared 4 to 15 points below yesterday's final quotations. Trading was only moderately heavy in volume.

Marking up of the call money rate from 8 to 12 per cent in the face of earlier predictions of easier rates, and the firmness of the time money market at 5¾ per cent was an important factor in the change in speculative sentiment. Wall street expects that call money will average 7½ per cent or higher for the month of December, and predictions of temporary rates of 12 to 15 per cent, and even higher, are heard in some banking quarters because of the heavy holiday demand for funds, coupled with the December 15 tax payments.

RATE ADVANCED

Call money advanced further to 12 per cent, the highest rate in eight years, shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The call loan rate was later advanced to 12 per cent, the highest degree since 1920, when it reached 20 per cent.

The market recently has lacked the vigor of the 6,000,000 share sessions which followed the national election, and there appears to have been an increasing volume of stock offered on all rallies. This has discouraged many "bull" traders, and stimulated short selling by operators who felt that the market was entitled to a sharp technical reaction after its recent spirited advance.

Early buying operations centered largely in the merchandising and motor issues, the former responding to reports of record-breaking holiday trade, and the latter moving up in anticipation of the bullish demonstration which precedes the opening of the automobile shows. Packard ran up 5 points to a new high at 18⅜, and then slumped to 15⅜. Chrysler advanced 4 points to 137¾, and dropped back to 131¾. Indian Motorcycle fell 6 points, Mack Trucks sagged 4 points below yesterday's final quotations, and other motors fell back a point or more.

COPPERS HARD HIT

Coppers also were hard hit on the reaction, Greene Cananea, Anaconda and Cerro de Pasco slipping back 4 to 6½ points before buying support became effective. Radio dropped 15 points, Montgomery Ward 12¼, Russia Insurance 9 and Victor Talking Machine, Warner Brothers, Commercial Solvents, Allis Chalmers, Goodyear, Mexican Seaboard and National Bellas Hess dipped 4 to 7 points. A. M. Byers ran up nearly 6 points to a new high at 206¼ and then tumbled to 193. Wright Aeronautical soared 13¾ points to 274¾ and then dropped back to 262.

New high records were established in the early trading by Atlas Powder, National Tea, The Fair, American Snuff and a sprinkling of low and medium priced issues.

Prices of important issues dropped sharply in the last hour when declines of one point or more were common between transactions. Montgomery Ward extended its loss to 17¾ points, while U. S. Steel, General Electric, Canadian Pacific, Woolworth, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse Electric, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Commercial Solvents fell four to eight points.

The closing was weak. Total sales approximated 5,000,000 shares.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Dec. 6—Corn values developed fresh strength today and did considerable to impart firmness to prices of other grain. Buying of future deliveries in the corn market came largely from yesterday's sellers, and there were also indications of further export purchases of corn both here and at the Gulf of Mexico. Developments regarding farm legislation at Washington were being closely watched.

Corn closed unsettled, 1c to 1¼c net higher, with March at 1.22¼@1.22½, up, oats 1c to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to 10c down.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—Prices eased off in a quiet session of the cotton market under southern selling and liquidation by trade interests. Wall Street and commission house connections. Uncertainty as to the showing of next Saturday's government report and the rather easier showing of Liverpool were contributing factors. The mid-afternoon market was quiet at net losses of about 13 to 15 points.

Futures closed steady 17@21 points lower (December 20.19@20.20c, January 20.13@20.15c, March 20.17@20.20c, May 20.10@20.12c, July 19.83@19.84, Spot quiet; middling 20.35c.

The market remained quiet later in the morning with prices ranging off to 20.21c for January and 20.21c for May, or about 5 to 10 points net lower under further local and commission house liquidation. At mid-day trading was dull with prices at about the lowest. On the average New York Cotton Exchange members expect a crop estimate of 14,100,000 bales, according to a canvass made here this morning.

TEXAS DRILLING DISCLOSES 3 NEW SANDS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE drilling of the deepest well in the world in Reagan county, Tex., indicates that three more producing sands may exist below the structure now giving the Big Lake Oil Company, subsidiary of the Plymouth Oil Company, a production of 15,000 barrels a day.

The deep test well was sunk to a depth of 8,250 feet by the Texon Oil and Land Company on a location 280 feet from the eastern boundary of the Big Lake holdings. The well is now producing 400 barrels of oil and 7,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day.

Good producing sands were encountered at depths of 4,500 feet and 6,200 feet, but drilling was continued to discover the full possibilities of the location. The present Big Lake-Plymouth production is being obtained at a depth of about 2,450 feet.

BIG LAKE is also drilling a deep test well on its own property. It has reached a depth of about 2,600 feet. Actual operations in the field are owned by the Big Lake Oil Company, in which Plymouth has a 75 per cent interest.

The oil being taken from the Texon deep test has a gravity of 51.7, which means that it is about 55 per cent gasoline, a very rare grade of oil.

RETAIL merchants are beginning to notice the effect of better industrial conditions on their holiday sales. Christmas this year will be far better than last year for this district.

The close of 1927 was marked by declining activity in the steel mills and in other Pittsburgh industries. This year a continued high rate of activity has been maintained. With steel operations over 80 per cent of capacity, labor is well employed. Other industries have been showing operations similar to those in steel.

The coal mines are also running at a higher rate with less of the atmosphere of warfare about them. The active mines are working close to capacity and great numbers of misplaced employes have found other work. This will give better business to the surrounding communities which will favorably influence sales in the city itself.

THE directors of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company yesterday held a special meeting to fill vacancies among officers and directors caused by the death of J. W. Oliver and the resignation of W. C. Chamberlain.

R. E. Sargent and F. S. Kaulbach, both of whom have had long experience in the organization, were elected directors.

H. M. Reed was elected first vice president and chairman of the executive committee, succeeding Mr. Oliver.

R. E. Sargent was appointed vice president and sales manager, succeeding Mr. Reed.

Farmer's Income Greater.

Farmer's income will be considerably greater than that of a year ago, according to the review published by Dominick & Dominick. "With industry highly active and facing an enormous volume of holiday trade, it is reassuring to note that agriculture will also share in the years prosperity. The composite output of 17 leading crops is 4.8 per cent greater than that of 1927 and 7.6 per cent greater than the five-year average. Of the 10-year period 1918-1927. A general estimate for the value of the nine principal crops set a figure of $8,124,000,000, compared with $7,675,000,000 in 1927. This would indicate an increase in all crop values amounting to about 6 per cent. The greater value of the crop, however, is not a full measure of the increase in the farmer's purchasing power. It is not possible to estimate the reduction in farm operating costs, but undoubtedly such a reduction has taken place partly as a result of the use of modern equipment. It is significant that, combining the crop yields per acre have been 3.4 per cent above the average yields during the past decade."

RESULTS IT GAVE WERE WONDERFUL

Pittsburgh Lady Has Glorious Health Since Ten Herbs Ended Ailments.

"The results that Ten Herbs gave me were wonderful," declares the statement of Mrs. Ida Mensch, of Chautauqua Street, Allentown, Pa.

MRS. BEN McCORMICK

"For a long time I had been in a very weak, run-down condition," Mrs. McCormick continued. "I was so nervous that I could get but little sleep. The least noise would awaken me. My appetite was poor and I was troubled with gas. I also suffered often because of dizziness and headache and backache all the time. My arms ached and were so sore and painful I could hardly raise them. I was also bothered with constipation.

"A neighbor told me about Ten Herbs and I started using your medicine. Now I am entirely well. My stomach feels fine. All aches and pains are gone. My appetite is good and I sleep soundly all night long. I am very thankful, for what Ten Herbs has done for me. It gives me pleasure to recommend your medicine to others."

Ten Herbs is a splendid new liquid combination of potent health-restoring products of Nature, including herbs, roots, barks and leaves, long recognized as valuable in the treatment of disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Ten Herbs is different from most medicines, being the cleansing, soothing, correcting action if they when taken into the human system. More and more persons of this city and countryside are vouching for the exceptional merits of this successful medicine.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

HE COUGHED SO BAD PEOPLE STARED-HAD TO LEAVE "MOVIE"

His Cough Worried Family. Ordinary Remedies Did Him No Good.

COUGHED WORSE NIGHTS OR WHEN INDOORS

"My husband months ago saw a doctor and was told there was nothing wrong with him, but that cough clung to him night and day. He would come from outdoors into a theatre or the house and soon he'd be hacking and barking terrible. Right in the midst of a movie he'd have to leave his seat. Neighbors commented on it.

He even took Cod Liver Oil, although he hated it, and quit before it did him any good. I finally told our doctor and he said: "Men are all alike and you can't blame them much, so go get him a big bottle of Linonine, it is a nice tasting Flaxseed, Eucalyptus, etc., mixture far better than Cod Liver Oil and works quick.

RESULTS WONDERFUL

"He liked Linonine so well he took it before meals until the whole bottle was gone. It not only stopped his cough—it built him up fine. I never saw medicine work such wonders before. Anybody with a cold or cough should use Linonine—and children love it."

A cough is dangerous this time of year. Well stocked druggists have Linonine, 50c or $1.00 sizes—or send dollar bill for large bottle parcels post. Kerr Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md.

CHURCHES PICK M'CONNELL AS HEAD

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Bishop John Francis McConnell, of New York, has been elected president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America for the quadrennium of 1928-32 without a single dissenting vote or nomination of another candidate by the 600 delegates of the organization. He will be inducted into office tonight.

The Rev. Livingston D. Lord, of Brooklyn, was re-elected recording secretary, and Frank H. Mann, of New York, treasurer.

The retiring president of the council, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of New York City, was designated radio minister for the coming quadrennium, continuing his official relationship to the council, in view of its enlarged radio broadcasting program.

LONG IN PITTSBURGH

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the New York area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the new president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, came to this city a short time ago from Pittsburgh, where he had been stationed for eight years.

Bishop McConnell is 57 years old. He was educated at Ohio Wesleyan University and Boston University. He was recently elected president of the board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and his wife is vice president of the women's board of foreign missions.

NATRONA DEATH LAID TO COLD

One man died as a result of the cold blast. Peter Gallagher, 70, of Natrona, was found dead along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks there today. He had fallen while walking along the tracks and struggled to free himself from a pool of water. He had succeeded in getting his body out of the pool, when it is believed he was overcome by the cold. Gallagher lived with a son in Natrona.

The Pittsburgh district this morning felt the keen edge of a 11-degree temperature, the lowest official mark of the season, thus far.

The sub-station of the weather bureau in Mt. Lebanon registered 11 above zero. Other suburban points reported but slightly higher.

In Pittsburgh proper thermometers registered 16.

With clear skies the mercury will ascend to about 30 this afternoon and will fall again tonight to about 24, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman says. Tomorrow likely will be cloudy with slowly rising temperature and snow flurries.

INSURANCE CASE TRIAL GOES ON

Non-suit of the action of Mrs. Lenora Howe, of Erie, to collect $45,000 insurance for the death of her husband, Willard Howe, in an automobile accident, asked by counsel for the Fidelity and Casualty Company, was denied today by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson. The trial of the case proceeded after Judge Gibson overruled the motion.

The question raised by the defense is whether Howe died from natural or accidental causes. He was burned to death in an automobile November 4, 1927, on the Edinboro road near Erie.

Man, Girl Are Fined On Wife's Complaint

Charles McShane, of 908 Cedar avenue, and Thelma Douglass, 22, of North Park Apartments, North avenue, were fined $50 each in Morals Court today for being together in Miss Douglass' apartment last night. McShane's defense was that he was washing a sweater for the girl.

They were arrested on complaint of Mrs. Anna McShane, of 326 East Lacock street, who testified that her husband and Miss Douglass had been "running around together."

M'KEESPORT; ONE-MAN CAR FIGHT OPENS

McKeesport officials regard one-man cars on Evans avenue as dangerous because of the grade, because of a bad curve, and because the street is under repair.

This was brought out in testimony of A. J. Richards, public safety director of McKeesport, at a hearing before the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission this afternoon.

The case came before the commission through a complaint filed by the McKeesport authorities following a controversy over the operation of one-man cars on the Evans avenue hill.

CITY BARRED USE

City officials forbade the operation of one-man cars.

The railways company then discontinued all service until a temporary agreement was reached whereby the company was allowed to operate one-man cars until the case was settled by the Public Service Commission.

OVER 9-PER CENT GRADE

Luke Savage, city engineer of McKeesport, testified Evans avenue has a grade of 9½ per cent for a considerable part of its length.

McKeesport is represented in the action by City Solicitor Harry M. Jones, and the Pittsburgh Railways Company by Attorney P. H. McCance.

GAS RATE FIGHT TO CONTINUE

A new hearing will be asked of the Public Service Commission to voice further protests against increase in natural gas rates here, it was announced by City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and his assistant, Charles P. Lang, the latter in charge of the city's public utilities litigation.

The commission two weeks ago dismissed the complaints of Pittsburgh and other cities and communities in Western Pennsylvania against the increased rates of the Equitable and Peoples' Natural Gas Companies. The fight had been in progress several years since the companies announced their rate increases.

The city will file its petition within a few days. City attorneys also will consult with those of other districts regarding the further protests.

DEATH ROLL

Harry Evans.

Harry Evans, 72, of 1231 McNeilly avenue, Dormont, died last night at St. Joseph's Hospital. Mr. Evans was born in Wales, but for the past half century had resided in the Pittsburgh district. He was employed for 10 years by the Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph. He leaves two nephews, W. H. and David Jenkins, both of Dormont. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Heinhauer's Mortuary, 2630 West Liberty avenue. Interment will be at Mt. Lebanon Cemetery.

Mrs. Clara Buigher.

Mrs. Clara Buigher, 70, widow of Rutherford Buigher, formerly of East Liverpool, O., died yesterday at the home of her son, Earl Buigher, Central Heights, Cleveland. She was born in New Castle and was married in 1880. Her husband was in charge of the East Liverpool plant of the National Drawn Steel Company until his death three years ago. She leaves one son and a brother, Johnson Ross.

Samuel E. Walker.

Samuel E. Walker, 70, died this morning at his home, 572 Washington avenue, Carnegie. Mr. Walker was born at Walkers Mill. He was a member of the Carnegie United Presbyterian Church. He leaves his widow, Martha Bell Walker; two sons, J. Harvey and J. Ira Walker, both at home; a daughter, Mrs. J. N. Ewing, of Carnegie, and two grandchildren.

WIFE HELPS MAN WED OTHER GIRL; HE IS HELD

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Herbert J. Leigh-Manuelle, 36, church organist and music teacher, who induced his wife to witness his marriage to a 19-year-old pupil, today was held without bail in the Suffolk County Jail on a charge of bigamy.

Mrs. Leigh-Manuelle remained at their West Sayville, L. I., home taking care of their three young sons, while Miss Martha Van Wyen, his newest bride, was at the home of her parents in the neighboring village of Sayville.

The Leigh-Manuelles have been married 13 years. Mrs. Leigh-Manuelle explained to police that she became aware last summer that her husband was infatuated with his pupil, but when she found herself unable to check this she resigned herself to the situation.

At the request of her husband she called at the Van Wyen home yesterday and asked whether Martha could accompany her to a dentist in New York. The permission was granted. At the station they were joined by Leigh-Manuelle.

The three went to the Municipal Building, where a license was taken out, and later Leigh-Manuelle and Miss Van Wyen were married at the Marble Collegiate Church, with Mrs. Leigh-Manuelle as a witness.

Leigh-Manuelle with his two wives then returned to Sayville, where the second Mrs. Leigh-Manuelle prepared to gather her belongings. Her parents, however, objected to the marriage and her father, Cornelius Van Wyen, a storekeeper, struck Leigh-Manuelle in the face. A brother had the music teacher arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. After being released under $250 bail on this charge, Leigh-Manuelle was rearrested on a charge of bigamy.

Improvements Are Cited In President's Address

In President Coolidge's excellent valedictory address to Congress the keynote was public improvements.

He approved the passage of the pending Boulder Dam bill, with its provision of flood control, irrigation, city water and electric power for Arizona and Southern California.

He called attention to the expenditure of $91,000,000 for river and harbor improvements this year, with $243,000,000 of further work already authorized by Congress.

He cited the public building program for Washington and the country at large, running into hundreds of millions of dollars. It will give Washington, he says, the most beautiful and stately public buildings which adorn any city in the world.

He urged that our American system of hard roads be extended into an inter-American highway to run clear through South America. He bespoke the assistance of our engineering experts and our financiers to help Latin American countries complete their links in this route.

He noted the government's fruitful expenditures for airway charting and lighting, with astonishing results in nation-wide air mail services, and in the demand for airplanes, motors and flying licenses, which tax both the capacity of the industry and of the licensing and inspection service of the Department of Commerce.

All these initial achievements herald the entrance of the country into what will be known as the era of public works. In charge of its momentous developments we have chosen as President one of the world's greatest engineers, Herbert Hoover.

With pardonable pride the President reviewed the astonishing adventure in economy recorded by the administration with which he has been connected since 1921. It is a story of ultimate economy in the face of rising expenditures in all directions.

In the last four years the cost of national defense has grown $118,000,000 a year. Expenditures for veterans' relief have swelled to the huge total of $765,000,000 annually, including $112,000,000 a year for soldiers' bonus.

From 1921 to 1928 the number of government employes under civil service have grown from 330,000 to over 400,000, while the average wage has leaped from $1,307 to $2,092.

There have been large outlays for public improvements, especially highways and waterways.

Nevertheless, in these seven years the administration has provided us with four cuts in the income tax. In spite of these cuts the government has been so run as to produce surpluses which have paid off a third of the national debt. Partly due to the stimulus of reduced tax burden our national income, as the President points out, has doubled and now amounts to the stupendous sum of ninety billion dollars a year.

In the foreign field the President can point to the complete success of his intervention in Nicaragua. All parties now urge the United States to supervise the next Nicaraguan election as we have the last one.

Our recognition has made a friend of the Chinese national government. Incidentally, it would be the fair and wise thing for us to acknowledge China as a first-class power by sending her an ambassador instead of a mere minister.

The Jones-White bill, the President tells us, has already stimulated some ship construction. Not very much, for the Shipping Board reports that England is building 50 ships for the foreign trade to our one.

President Coolidge approves farm relief to the sensible extent of a large revolving fund to be administered by a federal farm board for financing farmer organizations handling their own surplus product.

The "timid and suspicious" are warned that while our designs are neither militaristic nor imperialistic, we intend to have our rights respected in the world. The President urges Congress to pass the fifth cruiser bill.

Of the big things still to be done, Boulder Dam stands in the foreground. It has passed the House. It was prevented from coming to a vote in the Senate by the filibuster which closed the last session. It is the unfinished business on the Senate's calendar today. Its passage during the Coolidge administration will provide a permanent memorial to the President.

Chamber Seeks Members As Aid in Objectives

The Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, engaged in a campaign for new members sufficient to assure $100,000 additional income, has behind it the laudable purpose of furthering the five great objectives the Chamber recently announced as its goal in behalf of Pittsburgh. It is not to be an extended drive. It is an intensified effort of brief duration. Opening Tuesday, it will close this week. The trend of the canvass and the fervor of the army of workers is indicated in the result of the first day—$11,845, representing 300 memberships at $40 each, as the grand total for the "sales army" and special sustaining fund committee.

The Chamber of Commerce is our leading business and professional organization and one that should commend itself to those interested in furthering the resources and advantages of the city. It is more than a club. It is an agency of development and its capacity in that direction, like that of any organization, can never be more than exists in the fiber of its membership. Weak membership—weak effort; strong, virile membership—energy and action. New blood, too, always means new life. Hence opportunities to do big work for Pittsburgh are presented to those who may be invited to become members of the Chamber.

With its aims, as recently outlined by the organization, and commented upon favorably in this department of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, the Chamber has a program that is worthy of the support of all. These include (1) to publish Pittsburgh's true story to the world; (2) industrial expansion and diversification; (3) planning for a great river commerce; (4) the study of municipal government; (5) model living conditions for Pittsburgh.

Safety for Uncle Sam

Easy to Get, Not VERY Expensive.

With President Coolidge in office, and Herbert Hoover soon to be in office, demanding that this country he made safe against attack, Congress will probably decide to spend a few dollars on airplanes, submarines and fast cruisers.

The first thing probably will be the appropriation of $274,000,000 to build 15 cruisers of 10,000 tons each and one airplane carrier.

If Congress will spend about twice as much and build the greatest fighting airplane and submarine fleets in the world, this country can stop and enjoy its prosperity in safety.

Tales That Are Told

Surprise in Store

An old gentleman, who was inclined to be fussy, engaged a new valet.

On the morning of his first day of service the valet brought his master's coffee sharp at 7 o'clock and woke him.

"Oh, all right. I know—I know," said the old man testily.

For three further mornings the same proceedings took place, but each time the old gentleman grew more impatient. On the fourth morning he was awake before the valet could speak.

"Curse you!" he cried. "I know it's 7 o'clock and you've brought my coffee!"

"I beg your pardon, sir, but it's 8," replied the other urbanely. "Also, it's cooon this morning."

All He Wanted

With high hopes the commercial traveler called on a tradesman with whom he had never done business before.

"May I show you my samples?" he asked.

"Certainly," answered the tradesman, and watched his visitor produce a surprisingly large selection of articles from an insignificant bag. The traveler pointed out their merits and then waited.

"Well, there's only one thing I want," said the dealer, and the other whipped out his notebook.

"Yes, and what is that?"

"I want to see how you're going to get all those samples back into that bag."

The Cook's Book

"If I ever see this dirty book again, I'll burn it," exclaimed Mr. Jubbs, testily.

"I lend it to cook to read on Sundays," replied his wife, rescuing it from her husband's clutches.

"Well, why don't you get a new one? The dirt on this is about two inches thick, and it's almost in tatters."

"Oh, it's good enough!"

"Glad you think so!" retorted Mr. Jubbs. "Personally, I should think the cook would get tired of reading the same thing Sunday after Sunday."

"But she doesn't," said his wife. "It's the same book, of course, but it's never the same cook!"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

It ain't right to take advantage of a fellow that's a little hard of hearing or anything like that. In fact, it usually ain't possible. A guy that gets a little hard of hearing usually sharpens his wits so that he knows what you're saying a lot better than he did when he could hear well.

Anyhow, there was a woman that was pretty deaf, and she got her husband into police court for one thing and another. She was telling the judge about the old man's making such a nuisance of himself around home, and the judge says, "Well, ain't he a good husband to you?"

"Yes," she says, "he was out eight nights running."

The judge looked at the old man, and the old man turns his back to the old lady and says to the judge, "Sure, Judge, I was out running, old as I am, trying to get myself into condition so's I could take on a heavier job to support her better."

The old lady didn't hear what had made out of the "eight nights' running" so she was surprised when the judge dismissed the case and patted the old man on the back sympathetically.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THE text of this article is "BLESSED ARE THE MEEK FOR THEY SHALL INHERIT THE EARTH."

No, it isn't going to be a religious treatise. Far from it. It will be the frank statement of a selfish, quarrelsome human being who has come, most reluctantly, to recognize the virtues of meekness.

If any one had told me in my youth that I would ever see any virtue in meekness I would candidly have replied that they were cuckoo. Nutty. Completely scrambled.

I was—and am—a natural scrapper. My heft is considerable, and my disposition even more so. And how I do love having my own way! One look at me and most people let me have it without a dissenting murmur.

From which you may gather that meekness was, to me, the lowest, most abject form of human behavior. And of all sap verses that beatitude which recommended meekness was the sappiest.

Thus I thought and forth I went into life with a chip on my shoulder and a wallop in my fist, looking for a fight. And finding 'em plenty and pronto. Which was great stuff as long as I was very young and satisfied with fighting. But after a time my perception widened. Others, I saw, were achieving power by methods entirely different from mine—quiet methods which nevertheless attained results which I had not been able to attain with all my noisy force.

For instance—I fought with my relations and neighbors. They never fought with theirs—yet their word was accepted in the family while mine was snooted at. In our work the same difference prevailed. My idea of a nice, lively article was something that sounded like a cross between a gas tank explosion, a Democratic rally and a cat fight. They just whispered at the typewriter—and got all the votes!

Meek? Those boys were simply saturated with it. And look what it got them! Everything! Did they "inherit the earth?" They not only inherited the earth, but they were presented gratis with a first mortgage on heaven! And I had despised meekness!

So I've changed my technique. I no longer try to brass-knuckle my way through life. I'm taking lessons from the turtle dove and believe me, that's a wise bird. I am not only keeping out of trouble, but I am frequently getting by with stuff that would have resulted in a riot call under my old methods. And I'm finding countless pleasant things in life which I never detected before.

Meekness—I'm for it a million.

I'M FOR IT BECAUSE IT PAYS!

A BIT OF PARADISE

By Garrett P. Serviss

A LADY writes me: "Reading your article on the Harvest Moon has decided me to send you this, for it brought back so vividly to my memory a place which nestles at the foot of the Catskills, near the shore of the Delaware river, where I was born and lived until a few years ago. I trust that this will clear away your doubts about the continued existence of certain features of American life. For not only in the 'agricultural West,' but in the place I speak of still exists the old-time farmer, the Indian corn field, the cider apple and its press, the 'coon' and its thrilled hunter, who does not wonder at the glory of the harvest and the hunter's moons for they seem to be a part of that particular place. To spend a week there, breathing the spicy autumn air and roaming in the hazy Indian summer is happiness.."

Thus the earth justifies the devotion of its children—if they are children of wisdom. John Bunyan, sending his "Pilgrim" on the long, straight, narrow, adventurous way to the "Celestial City," did not think that the pure pleasures of this world should be contemptuously disregarded, but on the contrary, he created pleasant arbors by the wayside, and green meadows and fruitful gardens for the refreshment of his weary, burdened wanderers. The "House Beautiful," with its charming hostesses, stood overlooking the descent to the "Valley of the Shadow of Death," the Holy City itself was glimpsed from the "Delectable Mountains," and before the "Dark River" was crossed to the "Celestial Gate," they traversed the country of "Beulah," "whose air was very sweet and pleasant," and there "they solaced themselves for a season," and refreshed themselves in the "vineyards of the King."

Yes, Paradise has left its allurements upon the earth, but as Bunyan would have said, they are to be tested in pureness of heart. "Vanity Fair," too, lies in the way to "Mount Zion," but those who are held fast in its nets never see the "golden streets" or hear the celestial bells ring their welcome.

The mightiest "aid to devotion" that can be found is this "happiness" that my correspondent describes, arising from unselfseeking contact with nature. When one feels that things are beautiful and delightful because they are in their natural place, fulfilling their natural parts, a kind of "adoration" arises that is greater, deeper, more inexpressible, more surely uplifting than any invention of professional theology. In this sense it is true that "the undevout astronomer is mad."

But that does not apply to the technical astronomer of the observatory, or of the computing room, or of the astrophysical laboratory so much as it applies to those who consider the heavens without thinking of the science of astronomy at all, or without special reference to it. The glory of the harvest moon is not enhanced merely by studying the geometrical circumstances that govern its appearance. Only the right of it turned men to higher thoughts before astronomy as a science existed. With its wondrous beams it gilds the thoughts as well as "the fruit tree tops." Because it is so accordant with the terrestrial scene and so mysteriously influential over the human spirit, it is a striking example of the deep truth of old Aratus' line declaring that "from all quarters heaven speaks to man."

Many others beside my correspondent have bits of Paradise remaining forever in their memory; places where nature excites not so much wonder as happiness.

Bible Passages

Hannah's Song

(I Samuel 2: 1-10)

AND Hannah prayed, and said, My heart rejoiceth in the Lord, mine horn is exalted in the Lord: my mouth is enlarged over mine enemies; because I rejoice in thy salvation.

There is none holy as the Lord: for there is none beside thee: neither is there any rock like our God.

Talk no more so exceeding proudly; let no arrogancy come out of your mouth: for the Lord is a God of knowledge, and by him actions are weighed.

The bows of the mighty men are broken, and they that stumbled are girded with strength.

They that were full have hired out themselves for bread; and they that were hungry ceased: so that the barren hath born seven; and she that hath many children is waxed feeble.

The Lord killeth, and maketh alive: he bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up.

The Lord maketh poor, and maketh rich: he bringeth low, and lifteth up.

He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, and lifteth up the beggar from the dunghill, to set them among princes, and to make them inherit the throne of glory: for the pillars of the earth are the Lord's, and he hath set the world upon them.

He will keep the feet of his saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness; for by strength shall no man prevail.

The adversaries of the Lord shall be broken to pieces; out of heaven shall he thunder upon them: the Lord shall judge the ends of the earth; and he shall give strength unto his king, and exalt the horn of his anointed.

A Portrait

ALWAYS thinking out a way
That will make the hours more sweet,
Always buoyant, vivid, gay,
Always laughing at defeat.
With no great achievement hers,
Fit for lofty eminence!
Yet her happy spirit stirs
In all hearts a loyal sense.

She could light a spark, a flame
In a myriad lesser souls,
She could build a deathless name
With the forces she controls.

For she brings the glamour back,
Brings the beauty and romance
That these later ages lack.
Brings the breath of change and chance.

Isn't It So?

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—A sudden after-theater rain emphasizes Manhattan's "second company" nerves—its restlessness and impatience. For some reason the town becomes impotent in a shower. The other evening after a brilliant premiere, the crowd was imprisoned under the marquee by a downpour.

Broadway immediately tied itself up in a traffic knot. The quickest stepping street in the world was suddenly inert. Those shabby umbrella sellers, who appear mysteriously from nowhere two minutes after a rain, offered no comfort. It was a dressy "carriage crowd."

For a few minutes it retained a good humor. Then taut nerves began to explode. Imprecations at police and carriage callers turned to blasphemies. The usual jostling accepted good naturedly by crowds resulted in verbal spats and nasty epithets were passed.

It is no exaggeration to say the assemblage was on the brink of rioting. One stiff and stalwart—mostly stiff—gentleman mounted a chair and delivered a fiery oration on injustice, pointing out the only citizen able to depart was a high city official in a low-numbered car. That gesture is overdone, by the way.

There followed more hoots and caterwauling for the police, whose number had luckily been reinforced. Before it was over an excited woman snatched an evening wrap from another woman and ground it under her heel, and to cap the well-known climax an elderly lady slumped to the sidewalk in a faint.

It was a bit of midnight madness that would probably not take place in any other American city. In Paris they cut such capers before breakfast, just for the exercise. But in the big emotional crisis New York keeps its head, but disturbed by inconsequentials it flies off the handle.

And when it does the depth of mean temper is touched as may be noticed at what is considered a rank fight decision at Madison Square Garden. No matter how many ladies are present the language becomes decidedly "The Front Page."

An opera bouffe touch was offered at one of the gilded resorts near Montauk Point this summer. It is a combination gambling casino and cafe. A wine waiter offers a wine card of the choice spirits the establishment affords in a silver frame. But it is attached to a chain padlocked to his wrist.

And near Montauk Point is another inn recalling the days of coach and horses with its wide green yards and row of white posts. There are whitewashed walls with creepers and leaded windows and patrons may have one of those dinners of the English countryside with Yorkshire pudding, flagons of real ale and such. It is all served at tables between genuine oak beams and an old flagged floor. Red faced and tubby English waiters, imported from Canada, are on hand, and there is no music. It is so far back from the main roadway visitors say they can almost hear the swish of heather. And, I presume, the squelch of bogs.

MIKE—WATCH DOG

By Herbert Kaufman

MR. HOOVER wins by a radio majority. His speeches were delivered at the biggest town meeting in history. An easy third of the country's households listened to his every utterance and followed the campaign from first to last speech.

Politics has abandoned old stumping rounds for new stamping grounds.

Wireless has upset electioneering methods as suddenly and as radically as it is revolutionizing communication and amusement.

Party habit did not cast the ballots which made Herbert Hoover the next President of the United States. Home discussion debated his fitness. The deciding issues were thoroughly thrashed out in the sitting room.

Children for the first time generally learned how a republic is governed and began to realize the inherent power of active citizenship.

The vacuum tube has become a schoolroom in which the lessons of democracy will regularly be taught.

Executive messages and congressional deliberations will hereafter have an attentive audience of millions.

The performances of public servants will not only be followed by ear, but eventually thrown upon television screens and simultaneously observed throughout the continent.

A new public conscience is fermenting the air.

The George Society is in process of disbanding. Recent polling figures prove it.

National stockholders are increasingly attending directors' meetings and not, as formerly, leaving the selection of managing officers to minority opinion.

As we grow to know the instruments and processes of legislation and Mike, the National Watch Dog, barks warning from the scenes of action, we'll have less extravagance, fewer pork barrels and little corruption at all capitals.

Mr. Hoover takes office with public opinion behind him and within voice-reach.

When he enters the White House, Mike goes with him to protect the property.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

THE office boy had his head buried in a detective story. "Go next door and ask how to spell balogna," I told him.

"You spell it b-a-l-o-n-e-y," he said.

"Go find out how to spell it right," I told him.

In a moment he appeared at the door with a slip of paper and he said: "This isn't right. She spelled bah-logg-nah," and with a shrug he added: "She laughed at me when I asked her," he commented, "and then she spells it b-a-l-o-g-n-a. I'll go look in the dictionary."

A woman of 77 in New York is an expert bowler.

If you can knock 'em over at 77 the place would be New York. There are no old ladies there. Nor on the West Coast. The women in the central states can be old, if they like. There isn't any conspiracy against it.

If a woman has white hair you think when you see her clothes that it must be premature. You still believe it when you see her face, if she takes care. But when you see her knees, your confusion is complete. The only feature she can't disguise is her hands. Age tells there.

A mother comes into the kindergarten at St. Louis and she tells the teacher: "I think my little girl ought to be psychoanalyzed. Why she comes home from school and I ask her what happened all day and she won't tell me a thing. There must be something wrong."

"What's wrong," said the modern teacher, "is that the child is bored by being asked eternally. Stop asking her and she will tell you. Her school record is excellent and she is exceedingly bright. Nothing at all the matter with her. Children resent being forced to repeat what happened all day. They are distinctly bored by it. Let them alone and if anything worth repeating happens they will tell it."

The next day the same teacher writes me, a mother came in and insisted: "My child needs psychoanalyzing. It's terrible. He runs from morning till night; he talks incessantly; he never rests. He is slowly but surely driving me crazy. I am at him all the time, but he won't stop and won't listen."

"And what I think," said the teacher, "is that the mothers should be psychoanalyzed. I agree with Clarence Darrow, who in his book, 'Farmington,' suggests that the children be taken out of schools and the parents put into them."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

OFTEN you wonder what there is about you that prevents you from forming strong friendships.

In a way you seem popular, a number of persons seem friendly, but none seems to want your friendship.

None appears anxious or even willing to accept you on more than agreeable salutation basis.

Often you wish you had a friend to whom you could go and talk over matters that are vital to you.

You have not found one who seems enough interested in you to want to hear about your personal affairs.

If they did listen you feel that they would not keep secret any facts that you might divulge.

Not that you have any secrets, but you don't want your affairs broadcast when you discuss important personal matters with a friend.

Perhaps you have never indicated that you would be willing to accept the responsibilities of a true friend.

You want others to do for you what you are unwilling to do for them.
